EMERY IS ASKED QUESTIONS BY MRS. FRENCH

Mrs. Mary R. French has filed 127 interrogatories in the Superior Court for John Alvin Emery, contractor and builder of Boston's first subway, to answer in her suit for $80,000 for breach of promise. It is alleged the couple were engaged to marry and Emery failed to keep his promise, but married another woman and is now living in St. Botolph street.

"Did you ever ask the plaintiff if she were willing to love an old man like you and marry him?" is one of the questions Emery is requested to answer.

SAY B. & M. MADE $4,000,000 IN 16 MONTHS

A glowing picture of an ever-increasing prosperity which has put the Boston & Maine on a paying basis and has re-established its credit was painted before the Railroads Committee at the State House today by Attorney Conrad W. Crooker, who appeared in behalf of 550 minority stockholders who desire a repeal of the reorganization bill of last year.

"A year ago at this time, when the reorganization bill was passed, the road was bankrupt, and its economic organization was unsound," said Mr. Crooker, "but the times have changed.

"The Boston & Maine railroad has earned $4,000,000 in the last sixteen months and has materially reduced its indebtedness. This is not a spasmodic or temporary prosperity. I have the statement of Mr. Edmund Codman, former president of the Fitchburg railroad, who is an authority on railroad matters, that but 2 per cent of this increase is due to the spotted prosperity of war times.

"As business has increased so has the credit of the Boston & Maine become better. It is reasonable to assume that little or no difficulty will be encountered in extending the notes which fall due March 2."

Mr. Crooker said that the minority holders fear reorganization.

ACCUSED MAN

Step-Father Says Providence Young Woman or Her Friend Shot Him on Steps of Home

Providence, Feb. 8.—Miss Lillian Taylor, twenty-one, and John Manney, a married man, were today held by the police pending further investigation of the shooting of George W. Ryan, the girl's stepfather, on the steps of the Ryan home in Westminster Street.

Before lapsing into unconsciousness at the Rhode Island Hospital, Ryan, who is dying with a bullet in his liver, told the police that either his step-daughter or Manney shot him.

Miss Taylor declares that Ryan shot himself, and Manney asserts that he was in bed at the time of the shooting. This last statement is corroborated by Mrs. Manney, who is the mother of two children.

Although Manney and the pretty young waitress with whom he has been keeping company are being held charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, the police admit that they are at a loss to explain the case.

MISS TAYLOR'S VERSION.

"My stepfather shot himself," Miss Taylor informed the AMERICAN at the police station today. "We had trouble because I went with Mr. Manney, and father left home last Saturday on that account. I am twenty-one and I feel that I have a right to go with anyone I want to.

"Last night when I finished my work at the restaurant, I went home, and mother and I were alone in the house, when my stepfather came up the steps and rapped. He had not been home since Saturday. I opened the door to let him in, but he pulled it to again, and then we heard him fall.

"I think he shot himself because of his feeling in regard to the argument we had."

The girl's statement is corroborated by her mother, Mrs. Sarah Ryan, who was also taken into custody, but later released.

According to the police, Mr. and Mrs. Ryan were married six years ago. Her first husband, who was divorced, is James Taylor of Plymouth, Mass., who has the custody of two sons, seventeen and nineteen respectively.

For some time past Ryan is said to have objected to the attentions paid his stepdaughter by Manney, who owns a store almost directly across the street from the Ryan home. The girl refused to give up Manney, although she knew he was married and the father of two children.

TAUNTON WOMAN ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Taunton, Feb. 8. — Mrs. Martha J. Bickerman of Taunton filed a libel for divorce today against her husband, Harry A. Bickerman, a private detective of Boston, charging that her husband has "gross and confirmed habits of intoxication."

EXPOSES 'GAME OF BANKERS'

Sensational Charges by Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn Made Against "Biggest Street Car Monopoly"

An order was introduced in the House today by Representative Daniel W. Caney of Boston, directing the Public Service Commission to terminate the employ of Bion J. Arnold, the expert hired to examine the condition of the Bay State Street Railway Company. Arnold's record in Chicago and Kansas City has been distinctly pro-corporation.

That a careful investigation has revealed the astounding fact that $17,000,000 of watered and inflated securities have been issued by the Bay State Street Railway was one of the sensational statements made to the Street Railways Committee at the State House today by Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn, representing the Associated Boards of Trade of Essex County.

"For twenty years these watered and inflated securities have been dragging from the gross receipts of the Bay State a total interest charge large enough to replace with adequate modern machinery the antiquated equipment now being used on all the lines as a further inducement for people to walk rather than ride and pay a fare to the company for miserable service and strap-hanging rides," declared Mr. Bauer.

BIG FEE FOR PROMOTERS.

He declared that when Philip M. Saltonstall and E. Rollins Morse formed the Massachusetts Electric to take over the thirty-six subsidiary lines of the Bay State, they each received $300,000 and a large block of stock as promoters' profits and that the underwriters received $750,000.

"The Bay State," he said, "in the greatest street railway monopoly in this country. Every street railway in Massachusetts is expecting to put over a six cent fare proposition, if the Bay State gets away with this.

"Even the Boston Elevated has sent out a printed statement to their stockholders which says, under date of July 26, 1915:

"In the judgment of your directors the net income is not likely to be sufficient to provide for continuous six per cent. dividends, unless some relief is provided by an increase of the unit

Geraldine Farrar Weds Lou-Tellegen at Her Father's Cot

Miss Geraldine Farrar, famous prima donna, and Lou-Tellegen, "movie" star, photographed together before their wedding.

Geraldine Farrar, the Melrose girl who has become one of the greatest of opera singers, and whom Boston likes to call its own, was married at noon today at her New York residence to Lou-Tellegen, matinee idol and moving picture star.

The Farrar home in New York is at No. 18 West Seventy-fourth street, Father, so that he might participate in the ceremony and "give the bride away." Miss Farrar had had her father brought from the Roosevelt Hospital, where he was ill.

Because of his illness, and because their lives are busy ones, neither Miss Farrar nor Lou-Tellegen cared for any but a quiet wedding. They said yesterday when they secured a marriage license, that they would "go away for a few days." But it will only be a few days, for Miss Farrar—she will always be Geraldine Farrar—opens her opera season Monday night at the Metropolitan in "Tosca," while

STEAMER EAGLET, LONG IDLE, IS SOLD

The tremendous high rates commanded by ocean carriers as a result of the war has brought about the sale of the old steamer Eaglet, which has been tied up at Chelsea for two years. The Eaglet, which was built in 1884, was used as a freight carrier between Boston and Lynn. She has been sold to parties in Long Island, N. Y., and will be repaired at a cost of about $6,000.

PASSENGER BOAT IS TAKEN BY RAIDER

Orissa, From Chilean Ports to Liverpool, Seized, Boston Insurance Men Are Informed

The big British liner Orissa, bound from Chilean ports to Liverpool, has been captured by the German commerce raiders, according to information that reached Boston marine insurance writers today.

The Orissa left Antofogasta, Chile, on December 26. She called at Montevideo and at Rio Janeiro, leaving the latter port January 10.

She was a passenger liner, and carried a first class wireless, but shortly after she left Rio Janeiro, her wireless abruptly became silent.

RATES ARE RAISED.

Today insurance men admitted that they had received positive information that she had been captured. They immediately doubled insurance rates, on the strength of their information.

The Orissa was of 5,356 tons. How many passengers were aboard is not known.

Insurance men further said today that not only has the Orissa been captured, but that the German sea raiders, through the unexpectedness of their attack, have raised havoc with British shipping.

They said that their information leads them to believe much has happened which has not yet become public.

The doubling of insurance rates upon receipt of the news of the capture of the Orissa, is of extreme importance.

FEAR BIG LOSSES.

Before the Appam came into Norfolk, insurance rates were ten cent. on $100. When the Appam arrived they jumped to fifty cents. Today they went up 50 on the $100.

Ships leaving Boston range, with their cargoes, from $500,000 to $3,000,000 in value. Even on the cheaper vessels the insurance figures out thus:

Rate before Appam arrived, $5,000.
Rate after Appam arrived, $25,000.
Rate after today's increase, $50,000.

The latter rate is almost prohibitive. Insurance men here feared today that the German captures mean heavy loss for them.

The Orissa is owned by the Pacific Steam Navigation Company.

The Orissa, according to Lloyd's Register, is 421 feet long and 48.8 feet deep. The ship was built in 1895 by Hartte'd & Wolff, Belfast, Ireland, for the Pacific Steamship Navigation Company. She was built for passenger service and was a twin screw design. The boat hails from Liverpool, and is commanded by Captain Pearson.

JUDGE REPRIMANDS MAN WITH CIGAR

Judge Duff today halted proceedings in the City Police Court to reprimand a man who entered the room carrying a lighted cigar. "Did you know that you have committed a serious breach of etiquette, by carrying a lighted cigar?" asked the judge. "I am sorry I did so, Your Honor. I apologize. I didn't intend to do it," the man replied. "We have to have all these rules observed," said the court, "or we couldn't stay here."

CABINET FAILS TO DECIDE ON LUSITANIA

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Today's Cabinet meeting failed to decide whether Germany's latest Lusitania offer should be accepted. It was indicated that no fear is held of a break, but that further negotiations are possible.

The Cabinet was divided in its opinion as to the extent of the latest German effort to settle the controversy, and whether it is acceptable as far as this government is concerned. The majority thought it not.

The President and Secretary Lansing believed it better that Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador, should be asked to bring the latest German suggestions to Washington, so the same in both languages. Secretary Lansing will confer with Ambassador von Bernstorff late this afternoon or tonight.

The only word that was made public today on the controversy was the statement that the "outlook situation looks very favorable." This came from a source very close to the administration.

Prior to the Cabinet meeting today President Wilson and Secretary Lansing debated the situation at length. When the Cabinet meeting ended the President detained Secretary Lansing and Attorney-General Gregory for a further conference.

It is understood the administration believes the time has come to get every possible concession from Germany.

WAR SUMMARY

Preparations for a battle of some importance appear to be under way in France. Since the German attacks of a few days ago, the allied artillery has been very busy, claiming repeated successes over the German guns.

For the last forty-eight hours, the artillery duel has attained enormous proportions. The German bombardment appears to be concentrated south of Somme, on the line of an attack on Amiens. The capture of Amiens would be of tremendous importance to Germany; and its actual effects —not moral effect—would probably be better worth while than the capture of either Calais or Dunkirk. With Amiens in German hands, the usefulness of Calais and Dunkirk to the allies would be cut in half.

The German preparations for an offensive, reported by air scouts and spys, include the arrival behind of German front of masses of seasoned troops, of tremendous parks of artillery; and of the Kaiser himself.

Bloody fighting in Poland has been without effect of importance. Russian attacks in the Caucasus have been repulsed. The British force besieged in Kut-el-Amara is claimed by the Turks to be starving and short of ammunition.

One of the important bits of news today was to the effect that Earl Kitchener has been deposed. The removal of Kitchener from authority over military operations has been accomplished by directing that Sir William Robertson, Chief of Staff, shall hereafter be responsible for all orders.

Another internal event in England was the enlistment of a new class of recruits. Conscription goes into effect Thursday, and there is a rush to enlist to avoid the stigma of being drafted.

Rumania's attitude is still unsettled. There are reports that Germany plans a campaign against Russia in Bukowina as a demonstration of her power for Rumania's benefit.

President Wilson and his Cabinet are expected tomorrow to reach some decision on the Lusitania.

RUSH DEFENCE PROGRAM IN CONGRESS

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The armor plate committees, through Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, today served notice on the Senate Naval Affairs Committee that if Congress passes the armor plate factory bill they will boost the price $200 a ton on all armor plate needed to carry out the present building program.

The Bethlehem and Midvale Steel companies will abandon the two armor plate plants and go out of the armor plate business, Senator Penrose said. The advance in price on armor plate to the government will be imposed to create a fund to protect the stockholders.

The government is now in the market for approximately 120,000 tons of armor plate to carry out its present building program. By increasing the price $200 a ton, the armor plate companies would compel the government to spend $24,000,000 more to complete the program.

THREAT IS HEEDED.

This threat did not deter the Naval Affairs Committee from voting 9 to 5 in favor of recommending passage of the Tillman bill, appropriating $15,000,000 for the purchase of armor plate or of an armor plant of not less than 20,000 tons annual capacity.

Senators Tillman, Swanson, Bryan, Johnson, Chilton, Phelan, Pittsman, Clapp and Poindexter voted for the bill, and Senators Penrose, Lodge and William Alden Smith against it.

Senator Tillman declared he would press his bill for immediate passage in the Senate. He declared he would compel Senator Penrose to repeat the threat of the armor plate manufacturers on the floor of the Senate.

"We must get quick action on this bill to offset this attempt to hold up the government," said Senator Tillman.

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee today voted to recommend to the Senate for immediate passage the House bill providing $500,000 for additional building ways at Mare Island Navy Yard at San Francisco.

It also recommended $100,000 for a similar purpose for the New York Navy Yard. It voted to favorably report the House bill increasing the number of Annapolis midshipmen, giving each member of Congress the right to make three appointments instead of one.

"The American navy today is prepared to meet any enemy it may be called upon to battle with in the Pacific," Admiral Blue, chief of navigation of the navy, declared today before the House Naval Affairs Committee. The time required for the fleet to reach the Pacific would be sufficient in which to prepare the fleet for war, he said.

WILL RUSH BILLS.

The administration's preparedness program is to be sent through Congress at record speed. The opposition to the measure to place the country in a state of perfect defence will be steam-rollered.

The advocates of immediate efficiency in the army and the navy have at last discovered that they have the votes. And, spurred on by pressure from the White House, the naval and army bills are to be whipped into shape and pressed for action in the very near future.

President Wilson was admittedly very much pleased by the demonstration of non-partisanship that marked yesterday's passage through the House of the bills increasing the number of cadets at Annapolis and making funds available for modernizing the Mare Island and Brooklyn navy yards.

CERTAIN OF VOTES.

He has all along realized that many Republican votes would be needed to overcome the opposition of the Southern Democrats who have aligned themselves with the little army and navy men. Yesterday's demonstration has convinced him, it was learned at the White House today, that the opposition was weaker than had been assumed, and he will now exert all pressure possible to get his defence program through.

250,000 BRITISH RECRUITS ARE CALLED

By FRANK TEWSON.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Feb. 8.—Four more groups of English army reservists enlisted under the Lord Derby scheme, began reporting to the colors today. These men will not be ready for active service until Summer, however, as they will be given from three to five months training before being sent to the field of war.

It is estimated that the British army will be increased by approximately a quarter of a million men by the calling out of these recruits.

The four groups that began reporting today were:

No. 6—Aged twenty-three.
No. 7—Aged twenty-four.
No. 8—Aged twenty-five.
No. 9—Aged twenty-six.

With the men who began reporting today eight groups of recruits that attested under the Derby scheme have been called out for service. All are single men.

In order to avoid inconveniences and undue pressure upon the recruiting offices it was arranged that only a certain number of men should be required to report each day, but from now on until the four groups are exhausted the recruits will continue to present themselves.

There was a big rush of Derby volunteers today to enroll themselves before the conscription bill goes into effect on Thursday. By attesting before Thursday the recruits save themselves from the stigma of draft.

Special appeals have been issued by Sir Charles Wakefield, the Lord Mayor of London, who has published a list of famous London corps with which men may enroll. These corps include the Honourable Artillery Company, the City of London Rough Riders, the Fifth, Second and Third County of London Yeomanry, the First and Second London Engineers, the city of London Brigade and the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Artillery, the First and Second London Garrison Artillery, the city of London Regiment and the London Regiment of Territorials.

Sir Charles is anxious that the famous London regiments which have distinguished themselves in the first year of the war shall be kept at their full strength.

It was announced today at the war office that a proclamation would be issued tomorrow calling to the colors all classes of recruits from group No. 2 to group No. 13.

Germans Lose; Then Regain Trenches.

By International News Service.

Berlin, Feb. 8.—Terrific fighting for the possession of trenches south of the Somme River has been in progress since Sunday evening.

The German War Office stated today that a section of the trenches recently captured south of the Somme was taken by the French in a night attack, but was subsequently won back by the Germans.

German aeroplanes have bombarded two English military camps in West Flanders.

There is a lull on the east front.

Following is the text of the official report:

"West front—South of the Somme there have been lively battles with artillery. On Sunday night a small trench section in our new positions, was lost to the French. On Monday afternoon, after preparation with artillery the French made another attack, but it was repulsed. On Monday evening we delivered a counter attack, which regained for us our lost ground.

"A German aeroplane squadron attacked the camp at Poperinghe and also the English cantonments between Poperinghe and Dixmude, Belgium. After frequent fights with air craft of the enemy, our machines returned to our lines without loss.

"East front: There is nothing to report.

"Balkan front: There have been no incidents to report."

Arms Crisis in Russia, Is Past, War Chief Says

PETROGRAD, Feb. 8.—General Polivanhoff, Russian minister of war, made this statement today:

The munitions crisis which forced our retreat last Spring is past. From now on Russian artillery will always be capable of meeting the enemy with a veritable hurricane of steel all the way from the Baltic Sea to Uzeroum. The power of our guns will grow day by day. We are organizing to meet any crisis.

It is particularly gratifying to announce that we have just completed a modern broad guage railroad connecting the port of Archangel with the interior of Russia.

In short, as the war goes on our resources increase while those of the central powers diminish. Our guarantee for final overwhelming triumphs merely demands a continuation of hostilities.

BROCKTON CHILD BURNED TO DEATH

Brockton, Feb. 8.—Agnes Leona Thibault, aged six, was burned to death at noon today while playing with matches. The little girl was alone in the kitchen of her home, No. 59 East Elm street, and set the place afire. Her father left his family two years ago, and her mother, Mrs. Angelino Thibault, went to work today and left the child alone.

The house is directly across the street from police headquarters, and Patrolmen Owens and Reilly saw the flames. They rushed across the street and put out the blaze, but the child was burned to a crisp.

GERMANS PLAN DRIVES ON 3 FRONTS

By SYDNEY B. CAVE,
International News Service Correspondent.

London, Feb. 8.—That Germany has determined to combat the effect of the allies' diplomacy in Rumania with a vast military demonstration is reported in dispatches from Amsterdam and Geneva today.

These advices say that the Germans may attempt the most ambitious enterprise of the war—triple offensive.

For some time vast numbers of troops and an enormous amount of fresh artillery has been massed on the western front and on the Greek frontier and now it is reported that the German War Office is preparing for a series of attacks against the Russians.

A Bucharest dispatch says that hostilities have been resumed by the Russians in Bukowina, but weather conditions throughout the entire eastern theatre have been so inclement for weeks that fighting on a big scale could not be attempted by either side.

From the Baltic to the southern ranges of the Carpathians there have been blizzards, leaving the roads and mountain passes buried beneath mantles of snow. The thermometer has registered from zero to 20 or more degrees below.

In Macedonia and Albania a similar state of affairs has hindered a big forward movement by either side, but advantage has been taken of the lull to make preparations for an advance when conditions become more favorable.

PASTOR THREATENED BY MOHR IN LETTER

Providence, Feb. 8.—Another letter in the remarkable series written by the assassinated Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, assailing the character of the Rev. Samuel A. MacDougall of Nova Scotia, formerly of Providence, came to light today.

The fact that Dr. Mohr had conducted a long and violent epistolary assault upon Pastor MacDougall was related in detail in an exclusive article in last Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN, with the text of four of Dr. Mohr's letters and other documents in the case. The MacDougall affair is one of the new sensational developments of the Mohr murder case.

The article covered a period of six years of unremitting effort by Dr. Mohr to ruin the young clergyman.

The letter now added to this chain is in the possession of the Attorney-General's department. It was written by Dr. Mohr to a man in Nova Scotia who was connected with a former church of Pastor MacDougall. It was written in reply to a letter which Dr. Mohr had received from this man.

PICTURE WITH THE LETTER.

Likewise in the possession of the Attorney-General's department is a photograph of Pastor MacDougall in graduation garb, which is referred to in the Mohr letter.

In one of the letters published in the Sunday AMERICAN Dr. Mohr accused Pastor MacDougall of having wrongfully posed as a graduate of Brown University. On this point Dr. Mohr wrote:

He (MacDougall) stole or in some way obtained a cap and gown at the end of the four years, when the time came for his graduation; went to a photographer's, donned the cap and gown and had pictures taken with them on.

President W. H. P. Faunce wrote in reply to a query from Dr. Mohr, that Samuel A. MacDougall never was graduated from Brown.

In the present letter Dr. Mohr wrote that he could send photographs of Pastor MacDougall taken in cap and gown.

The letter reads as follows:

Providence, R. I., Oct. 13, '13.

Mr. Dear Sir:

Pardon me for the delay in my reply. If it was of any use I would go to any trouble to pull the cloth from MacDougall, behind which he is hiding his rascality. If anyone doubts what I say, or have the said or proceeds, demand me to make good, providing you expel him from your church where he is a hypocrite. It is no use for me to go to trouble and expense simply to satisfy rustic curiosity.

Four years ago, when the matter was fresh in mind, I furnished a complete history of MacDougall to Alexander Crowe of Melrose, who was then chief magistrate of that place and places in MacDougall's circuit. I sent a picture of MacDougall in cap and gown at his supposed graduation, sworn testimony as proofs he had no right to represent special honors, and a scholarship at Oxford, England, also of all the false representations, letters from Mr. Faunce, president of Brown, stating that he was an impostor, and a number of others.

If they did not choose to believe all that, what was the use of going to Bass River or the town of the country meeting? My word was surely no better than the indisputable proofs I delivered to Mr. Crowe. They knew, however, just where to find me, and several of his female dupes withheld to attend the meeting, but I would not allow them to degrade themselves.

WOULD "LOOK LIKE A CYCLONE."

I have seen MacDougall, but was never introduced to him. The time I was in Canada, looking his record up, and was in Bass River. A friendly woman had him informed of my coming, and he took a vacation and went to his former pastorate forty miles from the railroad. I did not pursue him further, but you wish I had, or ever meet him he will look as if a cyclone had hit him.

You write a very sensible and gentlemanly letter, but everyone says something mighty different, and that he must disprove the charges, but his ability to deceive before seems to be second none. He lived off his relatives here for four years and made them think he was a Brown student; brought a servant girl from Canada and took all her wages. Furnished the promise of marriage after graduation, and had also another girl contributing to his support.

It was about 1896 or 9 that he was supposed to complete his four years and obtain his credentials. I don't remember the exact time. It may have been 1900—I think that was the date. He flung around here for a month or more after the college closed on various pretext or other, and got he promised to marry until he got into a position where he could ruin her. He returned to the girl and then disappeared, she furnished his fare, etc., the following Winter and also the following. Fall or late Summer, I think.

CUT HIS WEDDING TOUR.

The coming Winter then he was married, and the servant girl who had supported him in part, alleging that she gave him $700 in all, immediately took steps through an attorney here to enforce him if he did not repay her. He cut short his wedding tour, and with borrowed money from a real estate operator in Providence and made some settlement. This other girl was then in Boston, having left Providence under a cloud of notoriety through her connection with him.

However, on his trip he communicated with her friends and called to see her in search of employment, had several hours' conversation with her, waited outside till her friends left, and then attempted to follow her to her room. During this conversation he tried to induce her to go to some suburban town where he claimed he had property, and they could spend a pleasant evening. He posed as single and desirous to marry the girl. To what extent he succeeded I don't know.

He was ordained near Foxford, I think, but that is a matter you can readily find out in your church. He may not have been ordained, although I always understood so. Thompson, as he was at that time a pastor in MacDougall's home town, can inform you of the inquiries he tried to practice on him and get into his church through forged credentials, his photographs and accounts he had made. When I saw Mr. Thompson he declined to talk in Quincy, outside of Boston.

SENT DOCUMENTS TO CANADA.

I called on MacDougall's mother, and sent documents to people in Canada. I sent all information to Mr. Crowe—a letter from Faunce, minutes, some of his letters, and even letters to Miss Etta Sullivan of Taunton, stating that the information he was assuming; affidavits from several persons, and numerous other letters from Taunton from persons who could directly attest to matters in question.

Mr. Crowe acknowledged all I had accused MacDougall of was indisputable; promised to have him leave his word that after he was through with the information furnished him he would return to me. However, in MacDougall's slick way he got possession of the matter on the pretext that he wished to look it over and use it to prosecute Mr. Crowe for defaming his character, and, notwithstanding that he could be a rich subject to sue if what I said was untrue, MacDougall never made a move and I could get it to give him plenty of encouragement.

If any person made the accusation against me that I made against him, I would grin at such a trimming he would never forget it, but you will take notice MacDougall never opposes his mouth that I hear of—further than saying that I was no real existence, and to deny what proofs I had offered against him.

Crowe did not keep faith with me, although as a simple countryman he did not mean to play false, I believe, but from the reason that the church did not understand it, was that all the accusations brought against him associate him as being a real entity. The ministers, however, consider him a scoundrel. I was just told that by one in past Spring. Crowe or any community in which MacDougall resides will supply you with questionable conduct.

I have retained copies of all letters or perhaps when applied me with facts, MacDougall's own letters and of all matter of whatever nature that was forwarded to Mr. Crowe. He, however, finally got cold-blooded and did not wish to fr our the enmity of his community, as he said the population was small and he would hurt in a business way, and also the sentiment to have your neighbors as enemies—that was all very good sense.

COULD NOT BELIEVE IT.

Then, as now, a good part of the church could not believe in the face of facts that MacDougall was the type of the fool and religion to hide baser things, although was an exact type of MacDougall. MacDougall was not exposed at the right time, as the victims wished to protect their names.

I can send you the photos he had taken in cap and gown, if that will prove that other things are also true. I don't wish to spend any time gratifying bucolic curiosity, but if you will give me any assurance I will take the time and furnish the goods.

I am

(Signed) C. F. MOHR.

Wife Slayer Comery to Be Hanged by Machine

Concord, N. H., Feb. 8.—Oscar J. Comery, the wife-slayer awaiting execution in the jail here, was visited today by the Rev. Father Thomas M. Cleary, pastor of St. John's Church, and after the visit it was announced that Comery had become reconciled to the Catholic faith.

Comery was married outside the church and had not followed the Catholic faith. The prison chaplain, the Rev. Whitman S. Hassett, had several services for Comery, and this week the prisoner asked to see a priest.

Today's visit and Comery's decision to embrace the Catholic faith followed.

Comery is to be executed February 18, and his hanging is to be accomplished by recently perfected apparatus. "The Wethersfield idea" and "the Rowe idea" are names variously applied to this apparatus.

SPEEDY END ASSURED.

If all goes well, it will only take about twenty-nine seconds for Comery to meet his fate, with this apparatus.

LEWIS TO MAKE APPEAL FOR NEW TRIAL

has been appraised and the value accepted by the court.

"Mrs. Mohr has received a preliminary widow's allowance of $2,000. Her son, Charlie, has received $10,000 on his father's insurance policy, which Dr. Mohr made out in favor of the little fellow. Phillip Knauer and myself have worked out a satisfactory agreement, one that is acceptable to Mrs. Mohr, C. Manning Mohr and Mrs. Adele Marr, the other heirs."

C. Manning Mohr and Mrs. Adele Marr are the children of Dr. Mohr by his first wife. They are represented by Attorney Joseph Roycroft of Baltimore, who has been attending the conferences for the past few days relative to the settling of the estate, before leaving for Baltimore he said that his clients would be satisfied with the plan worked out, and that it would be unnecessary to take the matter into the courts.

Mrs. Mohr has selected all the effects she desires from the personal estate, taking the mahogany library, her favorite piano, and several antiques. C. Manning Mohr has taken all of his father's effects, forty in number, one hundred pairs of shoes, a dozen riding habits, 50 canes and a score of hats.

William H. Lewis, the Boston attorney who defended Cecil Victor Brown on the charge of murdering Dr. Mohr, announced today that he would take an appeal on Friday of the jury's verdict of guilty. He said:

"This will be another Leo Frank case. All the negro societies of Boston and Providence have promised to rally to the aid of Brown and Henry Spellman, who have unjustly been found guilty of crime.

"As soon as our campaign for funds is started I know that the colored race throughout the country will come to the aid of the two unfortunate boys.

"I do not know just how much an appeal will cost, but I understand it will approximate $1,000. The AMERICAN has played fair throughout this fight and I want you to state that not one penny of Mrs. Mohr's money has been used to defend either Brown or Spellman.

"Attorney-General Rice said that the entire Mohr estate was behind our prosecution. I am sorry that the Attorney General was grossly unfair in this respect. I made thirteen trips to Providence and asked the defence at the trial on the receipt of 53 from Mrs. Louise Brown, wife of the accused man.

"Our race will not allow color to cost the liberty of these two boys, and I am confident that we can get an unlimited amount of money to fight this verdict."

This is the first official statement made by Attorney Lewis relative to his position in the matter. It will mean that any possible action that Attorney-General Herbert J. Rice may take against Mrs. Elizabeth Frances Mohr on the indictment of bootleg in assault on Miss Emily G. Burger will be postponed for several months to come.

It has been admitted by one of the members of the Attorney-General's office that it would be impossible to try Mrs. Mohr on the minor indictment unless new evidence was secured. It was the hope of Attorney-General Rice that Spellman would turn State's evidence, but an appeal by the lawyers for the two boys will make this impossible.

Sheriff George L. Stearns and Warden Charles H. Rowe have made up their minds that no such scenes will attend the Comery hanging as are said to have occurred at the execution of Frank Almy, twenty-three years ago. It is claimed, on that occasion, the rope stretched and Almy's feet dragged on the floor many minutes before death relieved his sufferings.

Stearns and Rowe went to Wethersfield, Ct., and were given a demonstration of the apparatus by Warden W. A. Garnett. In this demonstration a sack weighing 350 pounds was used as a "dummy." The warden told his visitors that the same apparatus they saw had executed thirty men. "Nearly 100 have been executed by this method, all without a hitch.

In the old-fashioned hanging from a gallows the man drops down through a trap. In this method there is no drop, save that the rope will either break or stretch, in which event horrible scenes result. It is the latter fear, the warden said, that has happened in the Almy case.

By the "Stearns idea" the condemned man is yanked into the air by means of a rope to which is attached a huge weight. It makes little difference if the rope does break, because the sudden force when the weight drops breaks the man's neck instantly. In fact the man is dead the instant the weight drops, so matters not what happens afterwards.

The method of operation is as follows:

The condemned man stands on the floor. There are no traps. The noose is adjusted around his neck. From the neck the rope goes up through a pulley overhead and carried at right angles through another pulley, the other end hanging down. This end is attached to a heavy weight, which is held by a catch.

APPARATUS NEVER FAILS.

At the proper time the catch is withdrawn, the weight drops and the condemned man is instantly jerked into the air. The sudden force applied by the rope to his neck breaks the neck instantly. Out of 100 cases, there has not been a single case where this failed to happen. This method, of course, does away with any chance whatever of the man escaping his death on the gallows.

As practiced at Wethersfield, the distance between the floor and beam is fourteen feet. The distance between the two pulleys is twelve feet. The weight runs on two upright tracks and is very similar in appearance to a miniature pile driver. The catch, or "drop," as it is called, is at the weight, is seven feet from the floor. When the catch is released the weight drops seven feet and consequently the condemned man is instantly raised seven feet.

The apparatus is extremely simple and requires no large room. It is very secure. All that is required is about fifty feet of three-quarter inch rope, two pulleys and the weight. While Wethersfield uses a regular weight, a bag of shot or even sand would do just as well.

Warden Gardner said today:

"The average time in thirty executions made by this method at this prison, is twenty-one seconds. In other words, from the time the condemned man steps foot in the death house to the time he is coming out in his coffin, on an average, just twenty-one seconds have elapsed. There is not a record of a single failure by using this method."

done without his knowledge or consent.

Benjamin H. Swig testified:

"I was a member of the executive board of the Roxbury Citizens' League last August. We were anxious to raise funds for our organization. Alexander E. Rose, president of the league, suggested that we secure money by seeking subscriptions.

"Aaron Prussian later told me to state that my father was interested in the proposition. I told Prussian to go ahead and do what he could.

"Prussian secured a number of contributions, most of which were made by check. The checks were sent out to the 'Swig Campaign Committee.' I indorsed them 'Swig Campaign Committee, B. H. Swig, treasurer.' None of this money was spent in my father's behalf. He has never even known that I had an account at the Fremont Trust Company.

"Prussian told me he secured for the rent of the hall used by the Roxbury Citizens' League, for entertainments, refreshments and cigars. We also contributed $1000 to the Ward 22 committee.

"After the present petition had been filed, Prussian asked my father what he would testify to. He was told to tell the truth. My father accused Prussian of being a party to a blackmailing scheme and asked him if he had called on him to get the $200 on which that 'Tobias Harmon' had spoken about.

Joseph R. Goldenthal testified:

"I met Prussian in the corridor of the courtroom in the early days of the hearing. In a conversation with him he said that he didn't get paid for all you did for Swig. He also refused to loan me money, while he failed to allow you to borrow his auto when you wished to remove your wife to a hospital. I can pay him in a place where you can get a piece of change and at the same time get even with Swig."

Typhus in Mexico City

New York, Feb. 8.—An epidemic of typhus is raging in Mexico City and a pestilence of smallpox is ravaging Tampico, according to passengers who arrived here today on the Ward liner Esperanza from Vera Cruz. There are fourteen thousand cases of typhus in Mexico City.

Patrons of the East Boston tunnel were "penny smiles" today.

It was all on account of the passing of the one-cent tunnel toll. This financial thorn in the East Boston flesh is now abolished, thanks to the new Boston City Council, which passed a special appropriation of $17,010 to make up the first payment to the city for tunnel bonds.

It means a lot to tunnel-users, not so much the actual money as the freedom from bother. To have a penny ready every day—or twice a day, for most of the tunnelites—was a real annoyance.

The actual saving to the thrifty-minded is not to be sneezed at, however. Statisticians were ready today with cheerful figures regarding the total saved by putting aside two cents a day or twelve cents a week for working days. That amounts to $62.31.

An interesting question today was: What becomes of the last penny paid in for tunnel use?

It was paid in at the State Street tunnel entrance by Edward Dana of Bright Road, Belmont, Division Superintendent James Smith, who had just received the order from President Rooney of the Elevated to cease toll collections, was on hand to get the final penny. It was a bright 1914 copper—and paid the Elevated back with a coin from his own pocket.

But Vice-President Matthew C. Smith decided the final penny would look well in the Elevated's museum. So Superintendent Smith yielded up his cent.

Later President Bancroft allowed it might make an appropriate souvenir for himself. Who can take it from the president is yet to be learned.

Representative "Pete" Gillis of East Boston got the tollgate in the Devonshire street station.

Stephano Pezet, twenty-six-year-old author, diplomat, playwright, former director of the Toy Theatre and son of the Peruvian minister to the United States, was refused a marriage license to wed Miss Mary Helen Leghorn of No. 19 Vernvale avenue, Brookline, today.

Pezet, who gave his residence as No. 17 Gramercy Park, New York city, applied at the office of the city clerk, in City Hall annex.

His fiancee is the daughter of George Henry Leghorn of No. 19 Vernvale avenue, Brookline, according to the intentions.

Man Must Die In Chair for Slaying Girl

Taunton, Feb. 8.—Anton Repkevitz (who pronounced the murder of Doma Perembida, his sweetheart, was sentenced to death in the week beginning March 12 by Judge Hugo Dubuque in the Superior Court here today.

His attorney, Frank M. Silvia, asked if Repkevitz desired another appeal to the courts, or if he wished to ask the Governor for commute his sentence. Repkevitz said so to each proposition. He repeated over and over a Russian phrase which was interpreted as meaning:

"I am God know."

Domka Perembida was found with her throat cut on March 13, 1914 in Fall River. Repkevitz was tried in November of that year, convicted, secured a new trial and was tried in January in New Bedford. He was brought to Taunton today for sentence.

Repkevitz, the evidence showed, was jealous of the girl, while she spurned his attentions. He had made threats against her, and when her body was found, the throat cut, his razor lay beside her.

Harrison Brothers Company, Inc., wholesale egg dealers, of No. 208 State street, were today fined $25 on each of two counts of having in their possession with intent to sell eggs unfit for food purposes, and of selling decomposed eggs.

Patrolman George W. McGaffery, attached to the Board of Health, who was the prosecuting officer, asked for a substantial fine in view of the fact that small dealers convicted on the same charges have been fined $200.

The convictions were secured on the law advocated by the AMERICAN'S pure food expert, Harry P. Cassidy. It was testified that the company sold three cases of eggs to Ida Kaplan of No. 47 Salem street, on January 24, and that six dozen of the eggs were bad.

Her mind apparently has been affected by overstudy, the police say.

The girl was able to tell that after leaving home yesterday she went to Waterville; then when her money gave out returned to North Vassalboro, twelve miles from here. She had no money for the rest of the trip home. It was after dark, and she applied to the home of Frank Reed for work as a domestic and for shelter for the night.

He and his family admitted her, and today Constable Richardson notified the Augusta police she was there. She was brought home by her father and City Marshal Harwood.

Before the girl was found, more than one hundred persons had started out in automobiles in search for the girl through the surrounding territory.

MORTONS IN VARIED ACTS AT KEITH'S

THERE out of the original four Mortons, but playing in two separate acts, next in the week's bill at Keith's Theatre. They meet with applause to the same token.

Clara Morton, assisted by Frank Sheldon, dances and sings and chatters blithely. Her dancing is an especially

Sam and Kitty Morton in "Back Where They Started" exchange quick repartee, sing some pleasing ballads and dance, they both, to the particular delight of the scene, put in one of their original bits of years ago.

Will Cressy and Blanche Dayne score in the new Cressy skit, "One Night Only." It is rich in Cressyisms and has a scenic of a finish when the auto tires blow up.

Jack Wyatt's Scottish Lads and Lassies, eleven of them, have a musical-and-dance fest day of song, dance and pipes, with costumes adding rich color effect.

Harry Tighe and Sylvia Johnson are quick successes as the big college boy and the littlest girl. He is big and funny and she is a delightful bit of femininity. Their nonsense goes without a hitch.

The McIntyres are clever sharpshooters. Maurice Burkhart in "The Thief" has a novel setting.

Clarence Oliver and Georgie Olp teach a pretty lesson in "Discontent."

Mortimer Tyrell and Co. close the bill suitably with basketball on bicycles. The Hearst-Vitagraph pictorial shows up-to-the-minute pictures, especially some fine ones of President Wilson on his preparedness tour.

O'BRIEN—Schaeffer. "The Man Who Does Everything," opened last night at the Orpheum Theatre for a week's engagement. For more than an hour he held the stage, literally "doing everything." There were ten distinct acts in his performance, every one of them well done and the involuntary applause filled the house. There was hardly a stage wait perceptible, though Schaeffer made a complete change of costume and scenery after each sketch. The most ubiquitous one of the man, alone, would win him fame; his cleverness has put him among the few at the top of vaudeville. With him on the bill was a most unusual comedy number, Ed. Hendell's "He Wrote It," with the leading role, and is assisted by Gertrude Perry. The new play is called "The Lost Boy," and its nature is indicated by the title. Elsie White, another performer for the first three days of the week, proved to be a young woman who has an excellent sense of accomplish. This was her debut in Boston. Charles Nevins and Ada Gerton appear in a comedy, called "The Typewriter and the Type." On Thursday, when the bill changes, Wilson Mizner's comedy, "Wonderworld, with "Just the Pass to the Night," will be given.

"ROLLING STONES" ARE NO MOSSBACKS

By FRED J. McISAAC.

SCHOOL AND COMPANY presented "Rolling Stones," styled "A Comedy of Adventures," at the Park Square Theatre last evening. The Square Theatre last evening. The scene is from the pen of Elinor Belcayre, author of "The Country Boy," and it features Charles Ruggles.

A big city boarding house was the scene at the end of the action of "The Rolling Stones," and the audience seemed to find themselves of types in anticipation on this occasion.

It is in Mrs. Brankham's pretentious boarding house that we make the acquaintance of Peggy Hyde (Harrison Ford) an open-faced, innocent young man who is about to be put on for non-payment of dues. Mrs. Brankham's star boarder, Miss Marcella Brainerd a fellow boarder, and enough of him to wish to pay up his back board, and while he is manly enough to refuse to borrow money from a girl, he determines to get it somehow.

The scene shifts to the Clark Street Bridge, where Buck is now lurking in his revolver in his pocket, waiting until some prosperous citizen passes from who he can procure relief. To Buck enters the unfortunate presents a gun at his head and asks him to embrace an alternative. The performance and Buck leads the way to Mrs. Brannigan's, where they forage for food.

It seems that a youth named Braden, who had fallen heir to a candy factory on condition that he marry another relative, the niece of Mrs. Brannigan, is expected at the boarding house, and Buck's friend is mistaken for him. Buck decides that they shall carry on the deception as he has reason to believe that Braden has been killed in a railroad wreck.

So Dave Hilton, the down-and-outer, is established as proprietor of a candy factory and fiance of a very pretty little girl. To complicate affairs the real Braden is around, but he is married, and dares not reveal his identity, or he will lose his share of the fortune, because he is not free to marry the Brannigan niece. Finally Ben and Buck Ryder will run the whole set, when they find it necessary to clean up with the office safe and make a getaway, and then things happen quick and fast until Braden's identity is revealed. His inability to marry without committing bigamy gives the factory to the fiancee, who divides with him, and they decide to retain the two bunco-men in the business.

As may be suspected from the synopsis, neither Buck nor Dave, the Heroes, have as much regard for the fifth commandment as might be wished. In fact, they have more in common with Jesse James than little Rollo. And from an ethical standpoint their success is rather to be deplored. To be sure, they occasionally have a spell of some crime and say "No we shouldn't do that, because it isn't right," but they commit a few outrages, such as forgery, conspiracy, etc., without pausing.

The personal charm of the young crooks is in their favor. Ruggles, from Walla Walla, not from Red Gap, as Dave Fulton the down-and-outer who plans to be president of a candy factory in two acts, has a talent for light comedy that is extraordinary. Harrison Ford also is a pleasing youth and Arthur Aylesworth as the real Braden is agreeable. Then there are two delightful girls, Margaret Brainerd and Marie Carroll.

Edgar Selwyn has a knack of sitting off every-day people, and we find the boarding mistress, Beatrice Ingram, her restless husband, Harry Bradley, and the faithful clerk, Daniel Jarrett, are remarkable types. The dialogue is bright, and many of the situations are very laughable. It is a play that is made to order, waiting.

GLOBE THEATRE—Michael Martin and Edith Fabrini were the headliners yesterday at the Globe Theatre, appearing in an act that is entirely novel. It is called a "dancelogue," a word that term fails to describe the new wrinkles these clever performers have introduced. It is unfortunately staged, calling for special scenery and gorgeous costuming which is striking, and new to this sort of entertainment. The sketch was an instant hit. The Telegraph Trio proved to consist of three performers whose specialty lay mostly in the line of parody. Their take-offs of some of the "stars" of the day, and of well known personages, were well done and full of an unctuous humor that tickled the audience immensely. Cecil, Eldred and Carr interspersed a good song program with acrobatic stunts and some very clever shadow walking. Harry Tyler and Gladys Cronin have a new comedy called "The Ripples," whose title hints at the extravagance it contains. And Jerome, the xylophonist who knows the heart and soul of ragtime, made the cheerful little wooden blocks fairly sing.

BOSTON THEATRE—The Boston Theatre opened yesterday morning, for the first time in many years as a combination vaudeville and picture house. Both programs show evidences of being carefully selected to give the variety necessary to a metropolitan audience. The picture program is headed by Nance O'Neil, always a favorite with Boston audiences, in "The Gods of Fate." Richard Buhler, well-known in Boston theatrical circles, and Miss Rosetta Brice. The picture itself is a masterpiece in every sense of the word, embodying a powerful love story together with a series of thrilling incidents dealing with the sterner side of life, the whole being staged in particularly interesting and appealing subject. The railroad wreck, which is worked into the second reel of the picture, is particularly sensational two completely equipped trains crashing together while going at a terrific speed, and actually see the cars of the passenger train leaping into mid-air and falling upon the engine in a mass of heat iron and splintered timbers. The surrounding numbers were particularly pleasing.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—Sitgert's Midgets, the troupe of talented little people which broke all records last week at a downtown theatre, opened yesterday the second week of its stay in Boston at the St. James Theatre before large audiences. Many were disappointed in getting seats last week, and will have an opportunity now, as the company stays the whole week at the St. James. Their performance, as given last night, was exactly as given last week. All twenty-five of the troupe, the singers, dancers, comedians, boxers, horsemen, equestriennes, elephant trainers, acrobats and strong men, occupy the stage for more than an hour, putting on in that time ten distinct acts, written for them by Ned Wayburn, and covering the whole field of vaudeville. With the Midgets appeared Miss Lulu Ethel McDonough, a newly discovered star singer, who is making a startling, popular hit; Elizabeth Mayo and Kay Ferne, who put on some very pretty and daintily bits of musical comedy, and Roeber and Gibson, a song and dance team of unusual cleverness. This part of the bill will remain with the St. James only through Wednesday, when the bill will change.

HUMANITY IN "BETWEEN LINES"

"BETWEEN THE LINES," the Harvard-Radcliffe prize play, written by Charlotte Chorpenning, staged by John Craig and his splendid support at the Castle Square, is a charming piece of stagecraft from its first line to its last.

It is so wholesome in its atmosphere, so healthy-minded man or woman that it is all but impossible to refrain from a feeling of thankfulness that its author was given inspiration to write it.

Its every situation is human to the core. But it is human nature at its best, its highest, as we all like to believe it here in our American homes.

It is a play capable of the greatest good and it is certain to be greeted by crowded houses this week and next. Every person present at the opening yesterday and last night will see "Between the Lines" again before it leaves Boston.

Well constructed as the production is the work of the Craig Players is as worthy of admiration. Every part they make, each line they speak, is full of life, meaning, and the audience was neither slow nor niggardly with its well-deserved curtain calls.

The play itself is unique and epilogue and three episodes. The story begins in New England, shifts to California, then brings the scene back to New York and comes to its third and final stage on a Mexican plantation.

Then comes the epilogue, whose well-wrought lines quickly tell what

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and greasy, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.—Advertisement.

Transforms Complexion; Wins Social Favors

"Had I been unable to transform my complexion so quickly, so completely, by an unique method, I should just be sure I never could have attended the Charity Ball." A certain social favorite, a picture of loveliness at the great event, told me this. "I had been much run down," she said. "When I beheld myself in the mirror after a night's troubled sleep I knew I was becoming heavy-eyed and pale; that I could not take, and attend the ball, the long rest my physician advised. A friend suggested I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the druggist's and use it as I would cold cream. The effect was nearly apparent. In a week I had a new complexion. Gone was that dull, pallid skin so gradually, there was no discomfort. Now you see the fresh, bright underskin with its youthful glow and expression.

"The worry lines and wrinkles, which had become quite numerous, I removed very easily by just bathing my face and neck every morning in a harmless lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. You get the mercolized wax and saxolite, and firm as a schoolgirl's."—Adv. in Town Talk.—Advertisement.

Proper Way to Keep Your Hair in Curl

If you want your hair to grow and thrive, don't curl it with a hot iron. The use of this barbarous instrument is bound to keep the hair dried and parched looking, with broken, split ends. It's a lot more sensible to adopt the simple silmerine method, which will not interfere in the least with the growth and health of the hair. Moreover, it means a far more beautiful curly and wavy effect, with no evidence of having been artificially accented.

A few ounces of liquid silmerine, which can of course be found in any drug store—of this among them. Just put a little in the hollow of the hand and draw this down the full length of the hair. Silmerine, by the way, is the sticky nor greasy; you will be simply delighted with it.—Advertisement.

Indians Now Eat Substitute for Firewater

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Lo, the poor Indian has located a grand substitute for the white man's firewater. Now the white man wants to take it away from him. To cure the substitute, or drinks a soap made therefrom, and becomes joyously or viciously envened, according to his nature. So Representative Gandy of South Dakota introduced in Congress today a bill to outlaw the pleasant food-drink.

So enamored has the Indian become of his new drink that he has elevated it to the religious ceremonies in some of the middle western tribes. The libation to the Great Manitou and a consequent devotion to Jesus has become a fetish religions rite, Representative Gandy says.

Representative Gandy's bill would prohibit the furnishing of "anhelonium or peyote," which is the high-brow name for mescal, to any Indian.

Col. House Off for London to Wind Up Trip

By International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 8.—Colonel E. M. House, special diplomatic agent of President Wilson, began the last lap of his European journey today when he left for London.

The impression prevails in Paris that Colonel House came abroad to make a study of the situation in England, France and Germany, and that he will report his views fully to President Wilson upon his return to the United States late this month.

Absolute silence is being maintained by the American agent, who is now called "the American Sphinx" by the French newspapers.

NEWSBOYS ATTEND WORCESTER PLAY

Worcester, Feb. 8.—The Boston AMERICAN newsboys of Worcester were given a big theatre party at the Worcester Theatre at the opening performance of "Under Fire," through the courtesy of Selwyn & Company of New York, under whose management "Under Fire" is being taken on the road. Three hundred boys were taken care of and the entire gallery was set aside for them. The newsboys enjoyed the performance greatly and cheered William Courtenay to the echo. Mr. Courtenay is a Worcester man and a great favorite here. "Under Fire" is here for the entire week and the company and production have been brought intact from the Park Square Theatre, Boston.

COLONEL GOODIER IS FOUND GUILTY

Washington, Feb. 8.—Lieutenant-colonel Lewis S. Goodier, judge advocate-general of the western department of the army, who recently was tried by court-martial at San Francisco, was found guilty, it was announced here today. Secretary of War Garrison completed his review of the court-martial findings and sent them to the President today. No intimation could be obtained what punishment had been recommended. Colonel Goodier was charged with interfering with army discipline in the conduct of the aviation school at San Diego.

3 TONS OF HAM AND HAM'S BARN BURN

Portsmouth, N. H., Feb. 8.—Three tons of hams were destroyed today by a fire which started in the smokehouse of the R. P. Canney Company on Vaughan street and spread to a barn nearby owned by Oliver W. Ham. The building of the Portsmouth Milling Company and the storehouse of the Silas Pierce Company on Green street were scorched. The damage was estimated at $3,500.

"VOTE" LEADERS DEBATE PLAN OF DEFENCE

By HELEN BULLITT LOWRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Feb. 8.—Woman suffrage leaders of national prominence today came out both for and against President Wilson's policy of preparedness.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, leader of the militant faction of American suffragists and chairman of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, is for "preparedness" to the teeth.

On the other hand, such prominent suffrage leaders as Mrs. Henry Villard and Mrs. Inez Mulholland Bolsseviain came out in opposition to preparedness.

"None of the countries have time to attack the United States now," declared Mrs. Belmont, who was a member of the Ford peace party. "They are too busy with their own concerns."

Mrs. Belmont took the stand that the time has gone by when men and guns and powder are to be considered the only armament of a nation.

"The women must be considered," she said. "That is one of the big lessons that has been drawn from the conflict in Europe."

"Let America learn from the European war," said Mrs. Belmont. "Let us not require a war of our own to learn that the real and permanent armament are the women who produce the real armament of a nation and her men. American preparedness consist, among other things, of the conservation of her womanhood."

Mrs. Wilson criticized President Wilson for arousing a spirit of militarism.

Mrs. Calvin Tompkins took the view that the real essence of a country's preparedness lies in its economic strength.

"Yeh, I am for preparedness, but not the old fashioned kind," said Mrs. Tompkins. "Germany's preparedness was an economic preparedness. Reorganize the country on a socialistic basis, with government ownership of railroads and other industries, and we will soon be prepared."

Mrs. Raymond Brown saw an argument for votes for women in the war.

Any Case of Tuberculosis

will be helped in some measure by prompt and persistent attention to right diet and hygienic living. Eat pure, well-cooked food and get out-door air in the open air as much as possible. Sleep in open air with windows wide open. If such measures do not avail, take Scott's Emulsion. Otherwise, the wise course is to try effective medication. For while science has not yet proclaimed a specific for tuberculosis, it is agreed that the best chances for recovery rest in a strengthening of all normal body functions.

In many cases Eckman's Alterative has relieved in this needed upbuilding. In any case it may be tried without risk, since it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs. Denounces Bay State Railway Company for Inflated Securities of fare, or otherwise. Signed, William A. Bancroft, President."

Harold S. Bauer, Speaking for Essex Boards of Trade, Causes Stir at Hearing.

Mr. Bauer appeared in behalf of a bill to authorize any city or town to revoke the location of any street railway that asks for a fare of more than 5 cents. The bill gives the cities and towns the right to take over and operate the trolley lines.

PEOPLE NOT PROTECTED.

"While this bill is emergency in effect it is fair to the people and places home rule authority upon the communities affected," said Mr. Bauer.

"We deem this bill necessary because we believe that past Legislatures and the Railroad and Public Service Commission have made a miserable failure in protecting the people of this State against the cumulative frauds and the unfair legislative privileges that are permissible in street railway companies.

"We believe coal with the present legislature the people stand a chance to get fair play and a square deal without regard to the insidious efforts of the always powerful street railway lobby, and the hundreds of thousands of dollars that are continually being spent for street railways in this State to legislative 'fix lawyers who live through 'jokers' in street railway laws that receive legislative approval in spite of the fact that these 'shaded up' regulations almost absolutely deny to the people any right at all either to successfully combat or even protest against the increasing power, greed and gall in the efforts of street railway companies to further milk the people.

A BROKERS' GAME.

"This particular street car monopoly was formed of their own motion as an opportunity for tremendous promotion and underwriting profits. It was and is today a bankers' and brokers' game masquerading under the misnomer of a 'greater public service,' and they are again stretching out their hands for more of the people's money."

"We contend that our bill is the best solution of the street railway problem, for the people, as it would protect economical and efficient operation, with sufficient modern equipment, and better service, all of which would produce profits and there would be no necessity for a six-cent fare.

"Now, this six-cent fare matter is before the Public Service Commission, but we have seen very great monopoly formed with the entire approval of the Railroad Commission, on conditions that fares should not be raised, but without any regard for the fact that it was a monopoly and involved promotion and underwriting profits of issuing and selling almost worthless securities at par value, the in the last analysis the fair rate would have to pay the difference.

"We have seen our present Public Service Commission decree the people of Waltham, a city of over 30,000 people, to a six-cent fare under very similar conditions. Waltham is the only city in the country of over 30,000 people that pays a six-cent fare.

"We have seen our laws shaped up by legislative fix by lawyers at an expense of hundreds of thousands of dollars from street railroad receipts, so that when the case of the railways is completely prepared by two years of effort by experts and their assistants, and a tremendous expenditure of money, the people of the State, whose only monopoly hopes to enjoy by a six-cent fare, are allowed only six months to prepare their case."

Experts Lack Facts on Conditions Here

The hearing on the petition of the Bay State Street Railway for permission to increase its fare was resumed before the Massachusetts Public Service Commission today at its quarters, No. 1 Beacon street.

The Bay State introduced as witnesses Lawrence Chamberlain, member of the New York banking and brokerage firm, and Louis Benjamin Franklin, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

Both said in effect that street railway securities should pay 7 per cent.

Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman brought out by questions that neither New York witness was posted on Massachusetts conditions.

One of the witnesses admitted that there were only two known cases where public action had agreed to 7 per cent. for a public utility corporations and those related to gas and telephone corporations in New Jersey.

"SAME BUNK," SAYS WITT.

Peter Witt, city railroad commissioner of Cleveland, O., who fought for the three-cent trolley fare in that city, arrived at the hearing. It was his first time at one of these sessions, although he was here five weeks ago to see the Public Service Commission. Mr. Witt gave an interview to the AMERICAN, saying:

"I could close my eyes and listen to this stuff. It is the same bunk that the corporations unloaded fifteen years ago when he started to fight for three-cent fares."

He was asked: "You were here five weeks ago, were you not, to consult with the Massachusetts Public Service Commission in regard to being required as an expert on behalf of the State?"

"Yes."

"Why were you not retained?"

"That will appear in due time."

"Did you not at that time say in substance 'What the Bay State Street Railway Company needs is not increase in fares, but a sheriff'?"

"Yes, I said that in substance."

"Is that the reason the commission did not retain you?"

"I do not care to answer at this time. That will all come out in due time."

NEW ARTISTIC STANDARD.

Lawrence Chamberlain was questioned by James F. Jackson, attorney for the Bay State. He said:

"There is a growing confidence in public utility securities of gas and electric light corporations, but a lessening confidence in street railway securities. Labor, owing to increased cost of living, is getting more. Higher artistic and safety standards have resulted in decreased earnings."

Q.—What do you mean by artistic standards? A.—Beautifying of streets.

Commissioner Eastman: "Has Massachusetts required beautifying of streets?"

"I don't know," replied the man from Manhattan.

"Are you familiar with Massachusetts?"

"I am not."

"DEPRECIATION" A NEW IDEA?

Questioned by Commissioner Eastman:

Q.—If a company paid dividends that it had not earned and had made no proper depreciation charge do you call that good management? A.—It depends on circumstances in general. It would be bad management. It would not be wise, but to tide over temporarily it might be wise.

Q.—Would a banker advise the purchase of securities of a company that had not provided for proper depreciation for a long time? A.—No. Depreciation is a new principle which has only been realized within the last few years.

Commissioner Russell interrupted with the following:

Q.—Don't you know that depreciation has been taught in the schools for the past twenty-five years, Mr. Chamberlain? A.—Yes.

Commissioner Eastman:

Q.—Don't you know big business concerns provided for depreciation ten years ago? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know of any case where 8 per cent. has been allowed by any public commission on public utilities? A.—Only two in New Jersey. One was a telephone and the other a gas company.

NILAND FILES PROTEST.

The next witness, Vice-President Franklin of the Guarantee Trust Company of New York, testified:

"The net corporate income of a street railroad company should be from 7 to 8 per cent. on the actual valuation of the property. The charge for depreciation and maintenance should be about 33 per cent. of the gross income."

Question by Commissioner Eastman: "Have not many street railroads built in Massachusetts on bonds and preferred stock and the preferred stock watered? A.—Yes, that leaves a small equity for bonds and works a material injury on the bonds.

Q.—Do you consider it good management for a company to pay dividends when it is not earning them to keep the business going? A.—Generally, it would be considered bad management. It should be done only as a temporary measure.

Former-Representative Niland, of East Boston, as representative of District 44, Brotherhood of the Painters and Decorators of America, presented a written protest to the commission for employing Bion J. Arnold. The protest reads:

"Mr. Arnold's services in St. Louis and Chicago have received the adverse criticism of the municipal authorities in both cities. Furthermore, while it is recognized that the system by which the Boston Elevated and the Bay State crowed their passengers is not equaled anywhere else in this State, it is interesting to recall that Mr. Bion J. Arnold is one of the few men who voted the Boston Elevated a gold medal for conserving the safety and health of the public."

'Dragged Down by Watered Stock'

FOR twenty years these watered and inflated securities have been dragging from the gross receipts of the Bay State a total interest charge large enough to replace with adequate equipment now being used on all the lines, as a further inducement for people to walk rather than ride and pay a fare to the company for miserable service and strap-hanging rides.—*From statement today by Ralph S. MISS FARRAR MARRIED IN NEW YORK her husband opens in "The King of Nowhere" in Albany, Friday night.

He will be unable to attend her opening night, but she plans to be in the audience at his Albany appearance without fail.

The wedding was at first planned to take place at the hospital, till it was learned that Mr. Farrar could be moved to the home.

The Rev. Dr. Leo A. Harvey officiated. The ceremony was performed at Mr. Farrar's bedside.

Only a few intimate friends were present. Charles A. Ellis, Miss Farrar's concert manager, stood up with her, and Mr. Tellegen's best man was C. G. Childs of Bala, Pa.

The real moneymoon of Lou-Tellegen and "Gerry" Farrar will occur at the close of the theatrical season. They will take a trip to Honolulu and Japan. In the meantime they will live in a New York apartment.

Miss Farrar and her fiance attracted much attention when they arrived at the office of City Clerk Scully in New York yesterday afternoon to secure their marriage license.

Lou-Tellegen's attorney accompanied them.

Miss Farrar wore a blue velvet coat trimmed with beaver fur, a velvet hat trimmed with Indian feathers and a charming smile for the newspaper men.

"My father," she said, "will be able to attend the wedding at his home. At first we thought of having it at the Roosevelt Hospital, but owing to his improved condition it has been possible to bring him home. That is about all there is to say."

"NO TIME FOR RING."

Reporters pressed her with questions, and she smilingly remarked:

"There's really nothing to say. I hope I get as much attention at my funeral."

She wore a large diamond ring, and someone asked:

"Is that your engagement ring?"

"Oh, no," she replied; "we haven't had time for that yet."

On the marriage license Miss Farrar gave her address as No. 18 West Seventy-fourth street and her age as thirty-three.

She is the daughter of Sidney Douglas Farrar. Her mother's maiden name was Henrietta M. Barnes.

Mr. Lou-Tellegen gave the same address. He wrote his age as thirty-two. He was born in Holland, his father being Heinr Louis Bernard Edmund van Dannenlen.

He legally took his present name, by which he has always been known in this country, last January 7.

Both said they had never been married and gave their occupations as "artists."

The Rev. Dr. Harvey, who performed the ceremony today, is pastor of the Fourth Unitarian Church, East Nineteenth street and Beverly road, Brooklyn.

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH DANDERINE

Spend 25 cents! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Try this! Hair gets beautiful, wavy and thick in few moments.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness, is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive germ ruins the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots shrink, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter and after a little as directed ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

If you sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you want to grow luxuriant, beautiful hair and lots of it—one dandruff germ in the scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now? For sale by all reliable druggists.—Advertisement.

Various Forms Of Headache

"It is necessary in order to treat headaches properly to understand the causes which produce the affection" says Dr. W. Ray, of Blockton, Ala. Continuing he says, "Physicians cannot even begin the treatment of a disease without knowing what causes give rise to it, and we must remember that headache is to be treated according to the same rule. We must not only be particular to give a remedy intended to counteract the cause which produces the headache, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain until the cause of the trouble has been removed. To answer this purpose, anti-kamnia tablets will be found a most convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one to three hours gives comfort and rest in the most severe cases of headache, neuralgia and particularly the headaches of women."

When we have a patient subject to regular attacks of sick headache, we should caution him to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is better than Ascolds," and when he feels the least sign of an oncoming attack, he should take two A-K Tablets. Such patients should always be instructed to carry a few anti-kamnia tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. These tablets are prompt in action and can be depended on to produce relief in a very few minutes. Ask for A-K Tablets.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions, it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure, and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.—Advertisement.

HUSBAND GAVE TO HER PLANT JUICE

Medford Lady Suffered for 3 Years Until She Took the New Stomach Remedy.

"The word 'can't' should be eliminated from everybody's vocabulary, for demonstrations are constantly coming to our notice of how the impossibilities of yesterday are the accepted facts of today," said the Plant Juice Man, who has his headquarters at the Liggett Drug Co.'s store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is introducing the new herbal stomach remedy, Plant Juice. "Because you have not been able to obtain relief in the past is no reason why you cannot be relieved today. Many Boston people who suffer from stomach, liver and kidney trouble and rheumatism are daily sending in signed testimonials, telling of the benefits they have derived from the use of Plant Juice."

Mrs. Ada Lynde, who resides at No. 8 Edward Place, Medford, where she is very popular socially, and also has many friends in this city, recently gave the following signed testimonial:

"For three years I had suffered with stomach trouble, which took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia. My food fermented in my stomach and caused gas to form, which pressed on my heart and gave me great pain. Everything I ate seemed to disagree with me and I could hardly keep any food in my stomach. I was in such pain that I could not sleep at night and would walk the floor all night long. I got weaker and weaker and all the medicines I had taken did not do me any good. My liver and kidneys were also affected and my complexion became very yellow and pimpled. At last my husband said he would buy me a bottle of Plant Juice and insisted that I try it. I have now taken two bottles and I can eat any kind of food and digest it and enjoy all my meals now. I sleep well and my liver and kidneys are in good condition. It has also cleared my complexion up beautifully and I have no more pains or aches. I am glad to recommend Plant Juice, for I think it is a great medicine."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Co.'s store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

This Will Remove Hair or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened irregular in New York, but with most of them showing gains and before long the trend was downward. Opening changes averaged little. At the start there was no pronounced price tendency in any class and trading was of moderate volume. War order issues were weakest. There was no greater demand for stocks from the public and readjustment of the position of the professional element appeared to be over for the moment, although some people maintain the market is still oversold.

Among gains at 10:10 were American Can ¼, Anaconda ¼, Cuba ¾, Tennessee Copper ¼, American Locomotive ¼, Colorado Fuel ¾, Goodrich ¼, Great Northern Ore ¾, Lackawanna Steel ¾, Hupp Motor ¼, Maxwell ¼, Texas Co. ¾, American Beet Sugar 1¼, Marine preferred certificates ¾, Rock Island ¾, Erie ¼, N. Y. Central ¼, Pennsylvania ¼ and Union Pacific ½.

Declines included American Smelting ¾, U. S. Steel ¾, California Petroleum ¾, Mexican Petroleum ¾, Utah Copper ¼, Studebaker ¾, Willys-Overland ¼, American Coal Products ¾, National Lead ½, Industrial Alcohol ¼ and Northern Pacific ¾.

SOME STRENGTH AT START

Regarding the earliest market phase, a New York dispatch says: "There was a show of strength at the opening, when a majority of stocks made gains ranging from fractions to over a point, but the demand was quickly supplied and in the next few minutes recessions were in order. Standard issues moved within narrow limits, but there were wide changes in a number of specialties, with some of these stocks making brisk advances."

PRICES HIGHER HERE

Prices ranged higher in Boston at the opening and later, but gains were small. Trading in the local market was lacking in features. Among early advances were California & Arizona ¼, Copper Range ¼, Isle Royale ¼, Osceola ¼, Old Dominion ¼, U. S. Smelting ½, and Boston & Maine ¼.

United Fruit was off ¼ and Shattuck-Arizona ¼.

COPPER METAL SITUATION.

The copper metal situation is apparently getting stronger day by day. The impression that all large consumers are well supplied for immediate requirements is evidently erroneous. Else selling agencies would not be making such radical advances in quotations for nearby deliveries.

Twenty-cent quotations have been asked for March copper, while late prices for the three succeeding months are: April 27, May 28¾ and June 29½. Production of most mines is being forced to the limit, yet producers see ahead a demand that is likely to overtax supply. There was never a situation like the present in the past of the industry.

For months after the war in Europe began domestic consumption was below normal, but within half a year it has steadily increased until it has reached a point seldom equalled. In addition, the demands of war munition makers does not relax. From across the Atlantic there comes no intimation of peace.

Indeed, all belligerents seem to be preparing for a struggle to the point where one side or the other will be exhausted. Copper is one of the most necessary products for the prosecution of modern warfare. No one knows what figure will limit of its price advance.

PEACE NEEDS WILL BE BIG.

After the war is over, whenever that will be, the call for copper will not cease. It will be as necessary for reconstruction then as it is for destruction now. The Central Powers of Europe have been so long cut off from their main source of supply, which is the United States, by the British blockade, that there should be enormous peace buying from that quarter, especially by Germany, one of the best customers for this commodity this country ever has had.

A local financial publication quotes an important copper interest as saying: "There has been a large amount of vessel room purchased by Germans for holding their big copper shipments after the war. All German boats now interned in American ports will be available for carrying large quantities of the metal."

All the embattled countries of Europe will be short of the metal when fighting ceases, although England, Italy and France are able at present to obtain all they want. Very little metal stock is being accumulated on the other side. This is indicated by metal prices in London, where American producers are asking 4130 a ton for electrolytic, which is equivalent to about 27 cents a pound New York and the highest record price in England.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Vice-President Taylor says Lackawanna Steel Company earnings in January were the largest in its history and were at the rate of more than 25 per cent. on stock.

It is believed the United States Steel Corporation will report that its unfilled tonnage increased from 290,000 to 300,000 tons last month.

The Boston bank statement shows loans decreased $1,262,000 to $3,531,000 last week.

Reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission from railroads operating 397,258 miles show that net revenue increased $27,413,561 in December last. In December, 1914, such returns totalled $48,936,885 and in that month in 1915 they totalled $84,350,255.

More than $17,000,000 has been contributed in this country for the relief of European war sufferers. The money has gone chiefly to Belgium, Poland, France and the Balkans.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

A Kansas City Lady Darkened Her Gray Hair and Stimulated Its Growth by a Simple Home Process.

She Tells How She Did It

A well-known resident of Kansas City, Mo., who darkened her gray hair by a simple home process, made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, stimulate its growth and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home: To half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently, then every two weeks. This mixture relieves scalp troubles and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair. It does not stain the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look 10 to 20 years younger.

SAYS BODY IS A POISON FACTORY

Urges everyone to drink glass of hot water before breakfast.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink we take into the body leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and sweet.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, grassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver kidneys and bowels.—Advertisement.

PROTEGE PLAYS SERVANT TO SAINT CYRS

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—In a luxurious apartment on the fourth floor of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, guarded from contact with the outside world, is a woman worth $15,000,000.

With her almost all the time are two young men, scarcely half her age.

The woman is Mrs. Annie Armstrong Stewart-Smith-Saint Cyr, socially famous on two continents. One of the young men is her husband, now known as Jean H. C. Saint Cyr.

The other is Robert R. Swem, constant companion of Saint Cyr and protege of the aged and wealthy Mrs. Caroline Peck Ruffin—dialect Cyr now dead.

Swem was discovered today. He has been missing since the revelations of the last week.

Swem re-entered in the humble garb of a servant. For some reason unknown, he is now ostensibly serving Saint Cyr as a valet.

FATE OF RUSS NOW IN HANDS OF JURY

The fate of Oscar F. Russ of Roxbury, charged with first degree murder of his wife Emily, was given to the jury today, following the charge of Judge Sisk in the Suffolk Criminal Court. Russ has been on trial the past six days.

Wendell P. Murray, counsel for the accused, and District Attorney Pelletier completed their arguments yesterday. Judge Sisk then warned the jurors not to discuss the case in any way.

Attorney Murray argued that the woman committed suicide. Taking the cords found tied around the woman's throat, he tied them around his own neck, to demonstrate the manner in which he contends the woman herself tried to choke herself before cutting her throat with a razor.

He maintained that Russ was "framed" by the medical experts and also argued that a "third degree" at the Roxbury Crossing station house led him to make a false confession.

The attorney claimed that Russ' alibi should warrant his client's acquittal.

District Attorney Pelletier, reviewing the government's case, said the facts proved that Russ killed his wife and then remained home during the evening to prove an alibi. Pasha in Egypt.

Chet Thomas in with Contract with Red Sox

Manager Carrigan of the Red Sox secured Catcher Chet Thomas's signed contract just before leaving for his home at Lewiston, Me., yesterday afternoon.

Thomas mailed in the document from Medicine Lodge, Kan. He has been hunting big game most of the Winter, he states, and claims he will be as hard as nails when he shows up at the training camp at Hot Springs, Ark.

With Thomas in line, Speaker, Wood, Collins and Shotten are the only Red Sox players out of the fold.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

BOSTON boxing lovers are considerably interested in Benny Leonard's start at the Hippodrome tonight. The well press-agented New Yorker meets a fast, tricky singer in Phil Bloom, and if he succeeds in defeating the speedy Brooklyn boy it's a sure thing he is no Boston's-pet.

GEORGE FREEMAN, Mike Glover's manager, states that his class charge is on the mend and will soon be sitting it up in training quarters. Freeman has signed to send Glover against Willie Ritchie in Milwaukee the first week in March and hopes nothing is going to happen to prevent the bout.

TERRY BROOKS and Walter Mohr clash at the B. M. A. A. Friday night. It looks as if Promoter Bennett has hooked just about the darb slugging match of the season.

BROOKS has not only won his last eleven starts, but being a clean fighter and clever trainer, is getting better as he gains in experience.

IN Mohr, the E. Mack entrant meets an experienced battler, one who has outpointed Frankie Mack, Sam Robideau, Gilbert Gallant and Paul Moore, so claims Mike Criss, matchmaker and press agent of the B. M. A. and gone to dead beats with Eddie Murphy and Leach Cross.

"DOC" BENNETT, the man behind the B. M. A. A., wants to know who's kidding him. "Peddie Kemp out at our place? Say Bo, that's ridiculous," stated Colonel Bennett in the AMERICAN office today. "Say, it would take the best burglar in the business to get by the door at our club without presenting the proper credentials.

"I'M sort of new at this game, but I don't think those Kansas names have a bigger drop of the taken at the big spry house that we have out at Hibernian Hall every Friday night. The club has several fans keeping cases, while the manager of each boy in the wind-up event is also on the door. There isn't a chance of any member to get in unless he pass his assessment in good time.

"WE are running the game right and will continue to do so. As for peddling 'comps.' Say, that's a not one, all the bunk, absolutely."

WALTER LEVINSKI BUTLER and "Chief" West clash at Chicopee February 25. Charley Dashler, Butler's manager, seeks extra booking for his charge in the meantime.

LEONARD ON WITH BLOOM

New York's New Ring Idol Makes Boston Bow Tonight—Clashes with Speedy Brooklynite.

BENNY LEONARD of New York and Phil Bloom of Brooklyn, two of the topliners among the new crop of lightweight sensations, a pair of clever ringsters and speedy boxers, clash in the main melee on the Armory A. A. card at the Hippodrome tonight.

On paper, the bout smacks of proving the real thing. Leonard and Bloom, according to Matchmaker Ivy Lewis, are to weigh in at 133 pounds at 5 o'clock. It's an easy weight for both battlers. They will step the usual twelve rounds providing, of course, one of the other doesn't slip over the kayo.

Leonard makes his Boston bow tonight. He is one of the season's most rollicking nuts in the interesting 135-pound division; in fact, looms up as having a coming champion and is finally relieving Hon. Freddie Welsh of his crown. Leonard has the punch. Joe Mandot, the peppy Southland champion, and Joe Welsh, an Eastern buff boy of quite fair ability, are among the youths Master Bennie has put away this Winter.

The punch is the only thing Bloom doesn't embrace in his ring repertoire as witnessed by the swaller-dart and speed of

Magnates in Session Seek New Player Limit

By FRANK G. MENKE.
Sporting Editor of the International News Service.

New York, Feb. 8.—It was a happy bunch of magnates who gathered here today for the National League meeting. With the fight on the Federal League all over, organized baseball leaders were confident that this will be a banner year in the national pastime.

The magnates had little to do at today's meeting. Two new members, Percy D. Haughton of the Braves and Charles H. Weeghman of the Cubs, were here to kobnob with their fellow baseballists.

The schedule will be adopted today. This is merely preliminary. An effort to extend the player limit will be made by Harry Hempstead, president of the Giants. New York, Boston and Chicago favor this move, but the other clubs apparently are against it, and as the change requires a unanimous vote it probably will be defeated.

Haughton was warmly welcomed by the baseball set and kept busy all day meeting his new partners. Rumor has it strong he is to be made a director in the parent organization.

Eddie Rousch, star last year in the outfield for the Newark Federals, will play right field for the Giants the coming season. The deal was closed last night, when Harry Hempstead handed over $6,000 for the player to Pat Powers.

Manager McGraw started after Rousch as soon as he received word of Davy Robertson's injury. The club officials a few days ago learned Robertson was in a bad way. This hastened the deal.

Garry Herrmann says the Reds need at least five players, and he is ready to talk shop with any manager who has the goods to sell.

Miller Huggins came on from St. Louis with Schuyler Britton. They, too, are ready to purchase or trade players. Incidentally, Britton says his club is for sale if a satisfactory offer is received.

Stallings is ready to pay a fancy figure for a first baseman, now that he is convinced that "Butch" Schmidt intends to retire. Should he fail to get the right man Stallings will start the season with Sherwood Magee at the initial corner.

LADIES' DAY SOUGHT.

The directors of the National League went into session this morning. Only routine business is scheduled, so the general meeting of the league will be under way by 3 p. m. The schedule will be adopted before the magnates adjourn.

Charles Weeghman and Joe Tinker arrived in the morning. Weeghman will ask the National League to set aside one day of each week as ladies' day.

Toney announced today that Outfielder Jack Murray is a free agent under the terms of his contract, Murray having served ten years in the National League.

TO HEAR NEW DRAFT RULE.

Tomorrow the proposed new draft rule will be considered and in the evening a banquet will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the National League.

The magnates were jubilant when they learned from Chicago that Federal Judge Landis had dismissed the suit brought against organized baseball by the Federal League.

"The decision was just what we expected," said Garry Herrmann. "We didn't see how it could be otherwise. We believe that the litigation is at an end and that everything is lovely for baseball in the future."

STALLINGS TURNS DOWN JACK MURRAY

New York, Feb. 8.—Jack Murray, the former Giant and Cub outfielder, who has been declared a free agent by the National League, today appealed to Manager Stallings of the Braves and Manager Donovan of the Yankees for work. He was turned down by both pilots. Jack is making a desperate effort to stay in the big show and hopes to get a job before the National League meeting breaks up.

AN APOLOGY.

We are hereby writing an apology to copyreaders, compositors, proofreaders and so forth who, have occasion to read this column of tan the London Times might any) sporting intelligence.

It ain't our fault. This is written in longhand because our typewriter has been ravished.

Leaving half a column or more of immortal ideas writ on a sheet of paper in the machine, we strolled across the street to pour a libation to Bacchus, or whoever the bloke was who was official wine agent on Mount Olympus. We returned to find our constructive work completely destructed.

Investigating, we found our typewriter a wreck, and our immortal ballads flatted among the filled.

Missing, Lost, Strayed or Stolen.

You never will know, gentle reader, what you have missed. We beg left, reposing carefully on the machine, a poem in which wit and beauty were combined to soothe the savage breast, to make the young old and the old young, to make a baby a billiard ball, to make a baseball magnate forget the dollar sign, and almost, but not quite, to persuade a wrestling promoter to be right.

What do we find? "Ya-a-a-a," you say, "what did you find?"

Here is what we find:

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party."

It is the time of all good men to repair to the aid of their party.

Now is the time for the good men to come to the aid of their party.

Calling in Dr. Watson, we asked, having taken a shot in the arm, "Well, Doc, what do you make of it?"

"Judging from the peculiar code," he replied, "I figure that it is Moriarity's work."

"Doc," we said, "you are the Ping Bodie of literature. The culprit is that fiend office boy over there."

"Marvelous!" cried Dr. Watson. "How on earth did you deduct it?"

"Simple, Watson, simple. We saw him using the machine when we came in."

POPULAR SONG.

It was a great big limousine which stopped outside the jail.
And from it sprang a fair young maid whose limbs were thin and frail.
She hastied to the sergeant's desk
with joy upon her face
And said: "I want to see the toughest guy in this here place."
They took her down a corridor to look the culprits o'er.
And finally she stood outside a tough young fellow's door.
"How many coppers have you slain?"
the kind young lady spoke.
"I never killed a cop," he said. "I only copped a poke."
She sadly turned away
And to him she did say:

CHO.

The roses which I brought to you
I spread upon the floor.
I thought you were a big league guy
but never now no more.
When first I put my lamps on you
You made my young heart flop.
But I am off of you for life—
You never crooked a cop.

SECOND STANZA.

A year has passed; the young man
sits within the setzzums place.
Once more there comes the fair young maid with smiles upon her face.
"Last year," she said, "I scorned you
when I found you were a dub,
But now I bring you roses from the Uplift Social Club."
The years rolled down the young man's cheeks, and gladly then he spoke:
"Since you were here a year ago I've never copped a poke.
You taught me when you gazed on me with scorn upon your brow,
You've got to shoot a cop or rot to be here now."
I learned it all that day
When to me you did say:

CHORUS:

ARCHIE WALSH HAS EDGE ON WENTZELL

Archie Walsh, New England's bowling champion, kept up his rapid work in his match with John Wentzell on the Unique alleys last night in disposing of Wentzell, 1214-1146. Walsh fell only twenty-nine pins shy of smashing the world's record he hung up at Portsmouth, N. H., last week. A 122 in his last string would have turned the trick, but Archie fell down badly, only totalling 97. It was the only time either bowler went under the century. The high strings were 138 and 135 for Walsh and 122 and 131 for Wentzell.

GOLFING CRACKS BEAT IT

Brady, Bowden, Kerrigan and McNamara Leave Today for Attacks on Southern Courses.

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

TODAY being the day when the great march of Northern professional golfers to the Southern courses starts, a call was made at the B. A. A. clubhouse for a chat with Mike Brady, the new professional at Oakley and one of the leading homebreds of the country.

Brady, together with George Bowden, Tommy Kerrigan and Tom McNamara, comprise the local representatives hitting out for sunny Southland.

With Kerrigan and McNamara leaving the local field for efforts in the Metropolitan district, Brady and Bowden remain the sole representatives of the American born professionals in these parts. Brady, rather than Bowden, is the one most entitled to consideration, for during the past several years Mike has had the open championship of this country fairly within his grasp, only to lose it through some unfortunate slip.

During the past four years Brady was the professional at Wallaston, and so popular had he become at the course, local followers of the game considered him a fixture, in fact, Mike had become looked upon in the same light as Kennedy's Kiosk, which is located near the tenth tee, as something that would always be at Wallaston.

Lo and behold he surprised the insiders by accepting the professional position at Oakley and there he will shine during the next season and possibly many others following. As successor to Chris Calloway, a famed English teacher, and one of the Oakley amateurs will want for competition if they ask Mike to play a round with them.

Brady, like Francis Quimet, Johnny McDermott, Walter Hagen and Tom McNamara, entered golf via the caddy route. When hardly more than knee high to a grasshopper, Mike started carrying the clubs at Commonwealth and remained in that position, some times lucrative and other times not until 1906 when the club tendered him the position of professional.

In his time as Wallaston, Brady has tied for the national open championship and won the Massachusetts title. In addition he has tied for the title and lost it in a playoff. He can almost always be relied upon to be in the money in the big events and with money wagered on him is a particularly fine man to have in a match.

However, like many other good golfers, be he English, Scotch or American, Brady is temperamental and is inclined to lapses from form. On such occasions he goes frightfully bad.

Henry Mahoney, the B. A. miler, sat with the writer and Brady during the talk and remarked he had once seen either Brady or McDermott get off an exceedingly long tee shot at Belmont in a match against Brice Evans and Rodney Brown. Brady said he made the shot, which was good for almost a full 400 yards.

Evans and Brown were in the match with the reputation of being big hitters, whereas McDermott and Brady were looked upon as only moderate men off the tee. It was at the fourth hole, which measures 500 yards, that the long shot came. Brady stepped up, took a full shot and the ball whizzed away from the tee.

About 280 yards away from the tee is a hill which few golfers reach. Brady not only reached it, his midget brassie cleared it and fell from view. The others drove and then all hands went out looking for their ball. As said before Brady's ball was found some 400 yards away. That was not only more than the big hitters could do, but in addition it was something no other golfer has ever been able to do before or since.

LAST NIGHT IN RING

New York, Feb. 8.—In an exciting bout of ten rounds Marty Cross defeated Sid (Kid) Allen at the Olympic A. C. In the tenth round Allen was floored four times. Willie Jackson outpointed Young Wagner.

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—Johnny Dundee scarcely boxed Jimmy Murphy of Philadelphia as a fast six-round bout at the Olympia A. A. The setto was crammed full of action.

New Bedford, Feb. 8.—Johnny Burt of New York bested Billy Carney in their ten-round bout at the P. and A. C. while George Davis of New York outweighed K. O. Brown of Fall River and Tiny Mack of New York shaded Mike Scola of Fall River.

New York, Feb. 8.—Joe Azzato scored a technical knockout over Billy Bennett at the Pioneer Sporting Club. The end came in the third round when Bennett, the referee said, could not continue. Anthony McGovern, a stable mate of Azzato, knocked out Mike Russell in the third round.

2 Men Are Thrown 4 Times in 10m. 45s. By King Stecher

By International News Service.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Feb. 8.—Lee Vannice, city marshal of Hampton, Iowa, lasted just two minutes with Joe Stecher here last night. Vannice was flopped in one minute and twenty seconds in the first fall and forty seconds in the second.

Ralph Vito, claimant of the championship of Canada, was flopped twice by Stecher, the first fall requiring four minutes and ten seconds, and the second four minutes and thirty-five seconds. Stecher used his famous scissors lock hold in throwing both men.

JOE EAGAN WINNER IN BOUT WITH HERZ

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—Joe Eagan of South Boston outboxed and outgamed Carl Herz of Washington in a ten-round bout before a big crowd at the Twelfth Regiment Armory A. C. and, although he fought the last seven rounds with a badly sprained right thumb battered the colored boxer's face to a pulp. Herz took his punishment without flinching and gave Eagan a tough battle. Fred Warren refereed up to the third round, when Claude Tibbets declared by a wreck at Chatham, N. Y., arrived and entered the ring. Young Josie of North Adams and Kid Allen went to a draw, while "Kid" Kerrigan was knocked out by Jimmy Callahan, in the second round.

SHEAN SLATED TO GO WITH PHILLIES

Manager Pat Moran of the Phillies spent a few hours in Boston yesterday on his way from his home at Fitchburg to New York, where he goes to attend the National League meeting. Moran had a chat with Dave Shean, who has been lost by Providence's pilot, and if the Attleboro boy does not succeed in landing a managerial berth in the Providence league, he will probably be taken on the trailing trip by Moran, who has given a chance to succeed Nelsons at the second station.

LEACH TO PILOT "RAWS."

Cleveland, O., Feb. 8.—Tommy Leach, the veteran National League outfielder, one of the stars of the game when in the best form with the Pirates, has been signed by President Chapin to manage the Rochester International League Club. Leach is expected to cover an outfield position on the team.

NOW FOR N. Y. A. C. GAMES

Dave Caldwell Meets Ted Meredith in 500-Yard Special; Drew and Loomis in Rubber.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Special features abound in the program arranged by the New York A. C. for the annual indoor games to be held tonight in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory.

Leading track and field performers have come from distant cities to take part and their previous races this Winter have been so close that real contests are assured.

Joe Ray of Chicago, the national mile champion, who was beaten in the Hunter mile at Boston last Saturday night, will have a chance to redeem himself in the Baxter mile. He meets Willie Gordon among other stars.

It is said in Ray's friends his poor showing in the Boston A. A. games was due to the long journey and the small track. Dave Caldwell, the winner of the big Boston race, will not be in the lineup for the Baxter race, as he is engaged in the Buermeyer 500-yard run, in which race he will attempt to beat the best of the middle distance division.

Ted Meredith, winner of the Buermeyer trophy last year, is in better condition than he has been at any previous time this season. In addition to Caldwell Meredith will have to finish in front of Halpin, Higgins, Moore and Tressider if he wishes to retain the trophy for another year.

Another meeting between Drew and Loomis will be the sprinting sensation of the games. It will be the rubber race, as Loomis beat Drew in San Francisco, while Drew turned the tables at the Millrose A. A. meet. Morse, Stephenson and Engels are other speedy men in this event.

Henry Barwise, B. A. A., will compete in the running high jump and Bill Meanix is entered in the hurdles.

George Goulding will make an attempt to lower the record for the one-mile walk. Then there will be an inter-city relay between teams of the N. Y. A. C. and Boston A. A.

BOSTON GOLFER SHINES.

Pinehurst, N. C., Feb. 8.—Stuyvesant Leroy of Newport and John McLeod of Boston won the handicap two-ball match, with a score of 78 net.

His "Great Love"

By NELL BRINKLEY

FOR her—the Muse of verse awoke and he began to match word to word to make a Valentine. For her he washed his thin neck every day and stayed awake in church. And for her sake he faced a spoonful of black medicine—looked it in the eye and drank it down—and smiled, because she said that he was brave.

A Man I know, who owns a small, dear son with golden hair that stands on end; grey eyes, and a mouth like a sleek strawberry, mused and spoke. And what he said was this: "I want my small son to know girls. He will get plenty of boys, and fights, and lessons in valor, and rough good-heartedness, and blows in the face without my lending him by that way; plenty to make a man of him if the man spirit is there.

"But this I will take the trouble to do—to see that he knows girls—little, big, or woman grown. But the feminine thing who will paint the silver lining on his bruised iron cloud, who will make him to know what softness, tenderness, delicacy, loveliness is. And on that knowledge he will draw in what ever he works at all life long. From that his faith in all fine and lovely things will spring.

"Where is the man who was really a good great man who had not fair ideals. What is a man or a boy without that hand behind him—the good hand of woman; the hand of down and steel! For the sake of all the lovely women and small girls I have known, and the sweetness that they offered me for mine to hold in my life, do I do any brave thing, any good thing, any tender, any big thing that humble I have done.

"And here's a heart of pity for the small thing who has never known the great Love—the worship of ten years old for feminine nineteen. And here's may any maid be proud to own the adoration of a child!

"Once I washed my neck faithfully for many weeks for a tall, slim girl who read me boy hero tales. Against her lovely crinkly plaited frock I leaned with her kind arm around me and together we builded tales of adventure mighty and impossible! For she was child and woman, too, and glad to run from her done-up hair and high heels and beaux to a tale and a toasted apple with a small worshipper.

She believed I was brave and without fear—she said so—and far away from her, for that, I took my medicine both then and now! She said I could do anything, and so I wrote her verses, and still I dare to write them—see! She said that I was truthful, and so for her I washed my neck beyond the boundry line of jaw and ear even when no one saw! And still I do a little more than what I must for her.

"My son shall not miss that!"

It is not necessary to shampoo quite so frequently if your hair is properly cleansed each time by use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers may be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as very beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing, the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.

A distinguished Royal Academician was once making a sketch of a picturesque farmhouse when the farmer came up to inspect the picture. He inquired of the artist what the would charge for it or one like it. "Oh," said the Royal Academician, "I won't charge you anything. But I tell you what—you shall give me instead of money one of those vile little squalling pigs I see yonder, pointing to a fine litter. "Oh, mate!" exclaimed the farmer. "But do you know what they pigs be worth? Why, they be worth ten shillin' apiece!"

"O H, you are going to marry me, are you?" quavered Dave.

"No, you are going to marry me."

"What's the difference?" asked Mr. Fulton, who intended to marry no one if he could avoid it.

"A girl can't ask the man, can she?" asked Norma, managing to look as alluring and inviting as possible.

"I don't know. You're a new one to me," grinned Dave Fulton. And then the two young things laughed merrily and with a good will that started them at least toward a friendship. And suddenly Dave Fulton felt a strange curiosity to know whether Norman Noggs would marry him if the Braden fortune did not go with him.

But you wouldn't like me if I wasn't Braden, would you?"

"Oh, yes I would," and Norma nodded her pretty little head.

"But you wouldn't marry me."

"I might."

"If I didn't have a cent?"

"Yes"—began the girl, and suddenly Dave Fulton took her hand and made up the deficiency in the first kiss he had given his fiancee. And then Norma, finding things going quite to her liking, became a little elusive and added, "If mother didn't object." The answer chilled Dave Fulton and he scarcely knew why.

If Norma Noggs had not made a determined and successful onslaught on David Fulton's heart this history might have been written quite otherwise than it must be. But Norma was attracted by Dave's boyish and buoyant good looks, and Dave fell instant victim to Norma's fluffy prettiness, and the destinies of a number of people were affected thereby.

Five minutes after David Fulton had kissed Norma Noggs of his own volition (and with an emphasis that showed plenty of "will to believe" that she was about the most attractive girl in the whole world) Mr. Buchanan Ryder and the rest of the boarding house menage returned to find David prancing about with a swelled-out chest that fairly burst the bonds of his borrowed clothes. And Mr. Ryder, seizing the moment, announced to the general public that Mr. Braden had appointed him his general manager.

There were a few protests from the executor of the estate and the uncle of the bride-to-be. But David of the triumphant manner found himself ready to collapse when it came to the consideration of business matters, and his acquiescence was ready and willing.

"I can't do without Buck. He's got to be my manager. I'll let you decide about everything else," With all due respect to Mr. Ryder, I think you're piling him in a very responsible position," said Norma gravely.

"That's just what I want. I want him to have all the responsibility"—began David a little too truthfully and concluded abruptly, "and a good salary, too. How much do you want, Buck?"

"Why—I hadn't thought."

This remarkable utterance was broken in on by a somewhat shocked Mr. Rice. "The position of general manager carries a fixed salary."

BUCK HAS NO OBJECTION TO A FIXED SALARY

Mr. Fulton, captain of industry, accepted this with a knowing air.

"That's all right; you have no objection to a fixed salary, have you?"

"Oh, no, indeed," replied Buck.

"And you can fix mine, too," said Dave so ingenuously that Rice was moved to wonder how his old friend Braden could have his boy grow up to be such an innocent target for anyone who chose to take advantage of him.

Obviously the next step in the game was to take the heir down to inspect his property. And just as they were all ready to depart, in rushed Jap Walter, with an air almost flustered enough to ruffle his smooth black hair out of its sleek pleasantness. Mr. Walter demanded an interview with Mr. Rice—a thing which every one was too excited to trouble much about.

Even Buchanan Ryder relaxed his vigilance long enough to see Jap Walter that "Mr. Braden had just made him his general business manager," and to add to that with a patronizing air he found it very pleasant to be able to tell "I'll tell you what I'll do. You're a pretty good sort and I'd like to do something for you. How would you like to work for us?"

"What?" shouted Jap Walter, "I'll start you off on ten a week, and you'll get practical experience," said Buck with a lordly air of generosity. "The job is open for you at any time."

And the overwhelming force of that munificent offer caused Mr. Jap Walter to exhibit symptoms of a tornado of rage.

"Mr. Rice, I want to see you about this fellow who calls himself Braden—he's a crook. He's no more Braden than you are. I know what I'm saying, and I can prove every word of it. This fellow is an impostor!"

Pompous Mr. Rice attempted various scornful and questioning interjections. But Mr. Walter stormed over them all. At last Rice, enraged a disguised "What makes you say all this?"

And with ease and nonchalance Jap Walter replied, "Because I'm Jerry Braden!"

BRADEN REVOLTS AND CALLS RYDER DOWN

"You? Impossible. Tut, tut, man. That's absurd on the face of it."

"Absurd on the face of it, perhaps. My name is Jericho Walter Braden. They called me Jap out in Walla Walla because they said my black hair and eyes and complexion suggested the yellow peril. And so when I came on I took my nickname and my middle name to preserve an incognito."

"Yes, but I've seen his papers. The birth certificate—everything," protested Mr. Rice.

"They were mine. They were intended for me. He's got everything that belongs to me. He's got my trunk, too. I went down to the station and they told me that somebody had already called for it."

"But if what you say is true began Mr. Rice.

"It is true. See here—here are some letters from my attorneys—here's my identification card. There's my picture on it. You don't have to take my word for it."

But even in the face of all the evidence, conservative Mr. Rice could hardly reverse his decision that the young chap he had first taken to be Braden resembled the friend of his youth and so must be his son.

Perhaps Mr. Rice would not have been convinced by any argument Jap Walter might have made; perhaps his sympathies would have remained persistently with the young Rolling Stone—but just then Anna Anderson, who would have done anything in the world to serve Buchanan Ryder a good turn, came into the room and served him a turn that boded very ill for his future.

Jap Walter called to her and asked her if she remembered a gift that Mr. Hewitt had sent to young Braden's father two years before. Innocently enough the girl gave her damaging testimony—the gift had been a watch which Mr. Hewitt had worn during all the years she had been his confidential secretary; she would remember it under any circumstances. From his pocket Jap Walter pulled out a watch in a heavy old gold hunting case. "Is that it?" he asked with a force that surprised Anna.

"Yes; where did you get it?"

Jap turned triumphantly to Rice and demanded the arrest of the impostor before he got out of the house.

"Get a policeman, Mr. Rice, and have them both arrested for conspiracy."

"Both of them?"

"Certainly. Ryder is just as guilty as the other fellow. I'll watch them until you get back."

And that name Anna Anderson started forward with fright giving way to puzzlement on her face.

"Ryder—guilty?" she asked. "What are you going to do, Mr. Rice? Of what is Buck guilty?"

Jap Walter probably had a little Oriental cruelty in his nature that fitted in with the appearance which had won him his title. Now he rather enjoyed telling Anna the cold-blooded truth about the situation.

"I'm sorry, Miss Anderson, but you may as well know now, because it will all come out in court anyway. He has conspired with this other fellow to get hold of a business that doesn't belong to him. You know I'm Braden, don't you?" he added in answer to her tortured exclamation of disbelief.

"I'm sure Mr. Ryder hasn't done anything wrong. I know he's innocent. I'll find him and bring him here. He'll convince you he's done nothing wrong." And the girl rushed from the room.

And just then Norma Noggs came in almost as if Fate had her in leading strings. Norma felt that life was being very kind to her, and she was ready to tell the whole world all about it. Here was she on the way to the Hewitt factory to inspect her property, and to inspect it in company with the fiance who was going to make her at once an heiress and a wife and a very happy and beloved young woman.

Now Mr. Jap Walter had never shown a proper appreciation of her charms, and so she found it altogether pleasant to be able to flourish before his eyes her desirable young love.

NORMA DOES THE PAIR A VERY GOOD TURN

"I want you to meet my fiance," she said perky and with a feeling that it was delightful to be rich enough to ignore the fact that the cable which were going to transport them all to the Hewitt factory were ticking away outside.

"Your new what?" gasped Jap.

Norma wondered if he were entirely ignorant of the French language. "Mr. Braden. We're going to be married, you know."

"Married? To him?" exclaimed Jap.

"Yes, I'm going to be a little hubby—come on, girlie," said Dave, not at all suspecting the very different part for which Jap had cast him. But that gentleman was in the throes of an idea.

"Oh, Miss Noggs—did you say you were really going to marry—that fellow?" said he.

"Certainly."

"Why that fixes the whole thing. When are you going to do it? Marry him, I mean."

"I won't know till I see mother. She'll want us to wait, I suppose, but I don't believe in long engagements, do you?" queried Norma.

"No, not in this case," said Mr. Jap Walter, who would have been perfectly delighted to have the marriage announced for the morrow. He congratulated them both very whole-heartedly; his enthusiasm actually led Dave to wonder whether the Brinnings knew that they were housing a near-lunatic.

A moment later Mr. Rice returned, flurried for a moment out of his accustomed pompositv.

"Where is he going? Why didn't you try to stop him?" asked Rice.

"Oh, Miss Anderson, stop that man," he called to the girl who had just come down the stairs after her fruitless search for Buchanan Ryder.

"That man is going to the office to begin his career as boss of the Hewitt candy stores," said Jap Walter, laughing rather surprisingly as he said it.

"Then we're just in time to prevent him. I have an officer waiting outside to arrest him," announced Mr. Rice.

"Stop him—don't let that officer touch him. I don't want them molested, do you understand? Let them go as far as they like. Nobody is to know anything about this. Tell that cop there's nothing doing," cried the excitable Mr. Walter.

Mr. Rice calmed down in inverse ratio to the other's excitability.

"Yes, but for what reason?" he asked.

"The best reason in the world. He's going to marry her," cried Walter, and caught himself up with a sudden fear lest somebody suspect just exactly how much Norma Noggs' wedding meant to him.

The Hobbies of the Great

Past and Present Famous Men Noted for Foibles

IF you have a hobby it does not mean necessarily that you are famous, yet many famous men have hobbies and many of the greatest celebrities of the past had their foibles.

Julius Caesar, warlike as he was, owned several swarms of bees, and in the Autumn he spent much time boiling sweet syrups on which to feed them.

Calvin was fond of throwing dice, whereas Luther and Boileau were great gamblers.

Buffon, the great naturalist, used to delight in gleaning local gossip from the village barber.

The great delight of Boyle and Curran was to watch the exhibition of puppet shows. The performance of Punch and Judy always dragged them out, even in a heavy shower.

The corporation of Torquay possesses the historic bowls with which Drake, Hawkins and Lord Howard of Effingham, according to the famous story, were playing when the first news of the Spanish Armada arrived.

The great Socrates, like M. Venizelos, the present great man of Greece, would spend many an hour in the society of youths, especially if they had fair minds in fair bodies. On the other hand, possessing perfect control over all his appetites, he could at a banquet drink more than anyone else present without being overcome.

Sir Walter Scott is said to have been fascinated by a recreation not unlike that which Gladstone indulged in—he planted trees. The famous poet bought an estate near the River Tweed and began to build a fine mansion upon it. Scott delighted in arranging walks around it and in planting thousands of trees in suitable places.

Golf, of course, enjoyed the favor of many prominent men of the past. Charles I. was fond of the game, and on his visit to Scotland in 1641 was playing on Leith links when intimation was given him of the rebellion in Ireland.

Do You Know That—

It has been shown that deafness is more common in cold countries than in warm climates, the ear being very sensitive to atmospheric changes.

The term Quaker was first applied to the sect because of the founder's frequent use of the word "tremble" in his exhortations.

An acre of good fishing ground at sea yields more food in a week than an acre of the best land will in a year.

It is a mistake to take alcohol to "keep out the cold"; the effect is just the reverse.

DRYDOCK PROBE IS URGED BY LABOR MEN

The Central Labor Union today sent to Governor Samuel W. McCall, a letter demanding an investigation of the contract granted by the Port Directors to the firm of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins, for the construction of a dry dock, and especially for the construction of a cofferdam to keep out the waters during the excavation work.

The letter reads as follows:

"After the Board of Port Directors was reorganized and Mr. Edward F. McSweeney was made chairman and Mr. Lombard Williams was added thereto, Your Excellency declared upon the public platform, on October 12, 1914, that the Governor put at the head of the Port Directors a gentleman who undoubtedly had a valuable knowledge of the subjects under the accident board, of which he had been a member, but who had, so far as known, no qualifications for the important work of chairman of the Port Directors.

"But although Mr. McSweeney and Mr. Williams had no experience in the work of the Port Board and although they were not engineers and had no ready acquaintance with engineering problems, they, nevertheless, immediately upon their appointment to the Port Board, not only determined that it was proper to build a dry dock, but that the particular contract which had been awarded to Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins by the former board was the best contract under the circumstances which the Commonwealth could make.

"Organized labor protested against this contract because it contained unsafe provisions. Even while these gentlemen were urging approval of this contract, the legality of which was questioned, the Attorney-General, giving the statute its plain meaning, declared that the contract was beyond the power of the Port Directors to make, and was, therefore, illegal.

"Immediately thereafter the Commonwealth was treated to the spectacle of very active lobbying on the part of the Port Directors and contractors to pass the bill which should validate not only the power of the Port Board to construct the dry dock, but should also validate this particular contract with Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins.

"Organized labor, however, challenged the wisdom of this contract and appearing was had before the Governor and Council. The contract was finally approved upon the strength of the testimony of one F. H. Harris, a civil engineer of the United States Navy, who had been assigned as an advisor to the Port Directors by the Secretary of the Navy, and who was paid for his services more than $7,000 by the Board of Port Directors.

"Mr. Harris, the $7,000 expert, strongly urged that the Dry Dock cofferdam be built of steel sheet piling driven to rock, as recited in the resolutions. It now appears that the contractor refuses to build the cofferdam according to the recommendations of Mr. Harris.

"If the Port Directors had in good faith put Mr. Harris forth as an expert on whose advice they rested their judgment as to the prudence of this contract, involving the expenditure perhaps of four or five million dollars, and for whose advice they paid more than seven thousand dollars, it would appear that his judgment should be conclusive and final.

"Whether the Port Directors employed Mr. Harris for the purpose of receiving from him competent advice and were acting in good faith with the Governor and Council then they held him out as a competent advisor, and are now acting imprudently and strangely or whether they were not honest with the Governor and Council and are now casting aside the advice of Mr. Harris as an incompetent engineer, you must judge for yourself.

"The firm of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins employed Frederick H. Fay as consulting engineer to design the form of cofferdam to be used in connection with the building of the dry dock. Thereupon the chairman of the Port Directors proceeded to engage a board of three engineers, one of whom is Professor Spofford of the Institute of Technology, also a member of the firm of Fay, Spofford & Thorndyke and a business partner of Mr. Fay's at $50 per day to advise the Port Directors as to the sufficiency of the plans of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins.

"The attention of the Port Directors was called to the fact that Professor Spofford was a business partner of Mr. Fay and that the Board was calling upon him to judge the work of his own partner.

"Professor Spofford approved of his partner's judgment and work and approved of the cofferdam plans which substituted pine planking for steel sheeting, contrary to the advice of Mr. Harris, the Port Board's original expert, who used language so emphatic in this regard that he is either right or incompetent. Perhaps you may be able to determine.

"Organized labor called attention to many features of this contract with Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins, which seemed questionable. The eagerness of the port directors to construct the drydock and award the contract for its construction to the firm of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins, hurrying it into the attempt to make an illegal contract, seemed strange at the time.

"The precipitate judgment in favor of the contract by Messrs. McSweeney and Williams, who, according to your excellency's own statement, knew nothing about the work of the Port Board and had no technical knowledge to pass upon the engineering problems of this contract, seemed even more strange.

"But the recent development concerning the cofferdam is not strange. It is the perfectly natural result of the strange circumstances which make up the entire history of the drydock, and is only the first of a train of results which may lead to very serious consequences to the Commonwealth if Your Excellency does not insist upon such a thorough investigation of all the conditions surrounding this matter and give notice to the parties concerned, both the Port Directors and the contractor, that the obligations of the contract must be fulfilled.

"The representatives of organized labor are especially interested in the safety of the cofferdam, for if it should give way during the excavation of the drydock the lives of hundreds of workmen might be imperiled, and it is almost certain that some would be lost."

STEEL MERGER A FACTOR IN SHARP RISE

By BOERSIANER.

That the Cambria Steel Company was responsible for the lively demonstrations and sharp rise in the specialties, is like saying that both Paul and Peter were benefited by the proverbial transaction. Obviously what the Midvale combination gained the Youngstown combine lost, possibly irretrievably.

To the market, therefore, the strategem in the steel and iron industry was necessarily neutral; a view that is tellingly confirmed in the declines in the shares of the companies, other than the Cambria, which had been scheduled for the Youngstown merger by the advance in Midvale shares and Cambria stock.

In a case of this kind the market cannot push both ways, so the market as a whole acted independently of it.

Only one issue among the specialties was affected by an exterior, Mexican Petroleum, which rose 3¾ points on the announcement that it would be one of the constituents of the Pan-American petroleum, coal and transportation amalgamation. Smelting, Alcohol, Texas Company, Studebaker, Baldwin and other stocks which appreciated pronouncedly, did so from innate causes; while the strength of the market was on an entirety, a continuation of the recovery that began in the fifth hour of last Friday's session, betokened fairly liquidation by the course of Steel Common, which closed on a net gain of 1¾ points.

Or Steel it was estimated that the unfilled tonnage at the end of January showed between 200,000 and 300,000 tons, a most satisfactory result, considering the sold-up state of the industry in general.

Officials of the Steel Corporation evidently were not displeased with the abrupt and to the street unexpected turn of affairs in the Youngstown negotiation. E. T. Stotesbury is a Morgan partner; he is a director and the dominant influence in the Cambria corporation.

Like to Know Henry Ford?

Like to know things about him such as these?

What sort of people his father and mother were.

How, as a boy, farm work seemed to be his life's inevitable occupation.

How, while still a boy, he made a steam wagon that would run.

How he ran away from home and school to work in a Detroit machine shop at $2.50 a week.

How he devised a project of making 50-cent watches by the thousands and why he gave it up.

How his father's illness compelled his return to the farm.

How a red-cheeked country girl kept him there.

How he treated the men who worked for him.

How the idea of a horseless vehicle came to him.

How he hit upon the thought of a gasoline engine.

And so on, through his struggles for achievement, through his patient, persistent devotion to an idea, to his final emergence as one of America's great business leaders and a Crusader for Peace.

In such detail as is here suggested and in a narrative style that has all the fascination of a drama.

Rose Wilder Lane presents the story of Henry Ford as he himself told it to her.

Mr. Louis D. Brandeis on the Supreme Bench Will Protect Both the Honor of the Court and the Rights of the People

THE Central Labor Union of Boston has done itself credit and has displayed intelligence and appreciation which makes its organization strong and effective by its endorsement of the appointment of Mr. Louis D. Brandeis to the Supreme Court.

Hurrying to Washington are all the minions of special privilege and organized greed to prevent the confirmation of Mr. Brandeis to the highest court in the world. Organized labor is extraordinarily interested in keeping the balance even between progress and reaction in this great tribunal.

The Supreme Court has successfully usurped a power which no other tribunal in the world exercises to invalidate the acts of the national Legislature whenever it deems them contrary to the national Constitution. No such authority was ever given to the Supreme Court by the Fathers. It is not found anywhere in the Constitution and exists only by the assumption of the judges themselves and the acquiescence of the country so long as the power is not too outrageously abused.

But the Supreme Court in recent years has been dangerously extending the power of the courts of equity in labor disputes to a point which nullifies the right of free speech and a free press guaranteed by the Constitution. A little further extension of that power will make the usurpation of a right to exercise the extraordinary powers of this court intolerable, and will therefore greatly injure the power and prestige of the tribunal itself.

A man like Mr. Brandeis, who is more than a book lawyer, more than a mere adept in technical legerdemain, who understands the needs of the country as a statesman ought to understand them, and who knows that the most intolerable thing in a free country is judge-made law, will be a protection not only to the prestige and honor of the Supreme Court itself, but a protection also to organized labor and to the great masses of the country, who ask only for a fair deal and demand only that the law which is applied to them shall be applied to all, and that no law which is not applied to the majority shall be applied to any privileged minority.

The Bill to Revise the Endowment Feature of Life Insurance Is a Good One and Should Pass

THE endowment policy of our life insurance companies contains two features. One is insurance to the beneficiary or family of the insured against his death. That is called the straight life part. The other feature is the endowment, which is really an alias for an investment.

The insured, when he takes out an endowment policy, really pays for so much protection during the period in which the policy runs and so much as an investment. But he is not told how much he pays on account of the investment and how much on account of the insurance.

Of course, the primary object of the payments is for protection to the family. But under the cajolery of a confused endowment policy he is really induced to deposit with the life insurance company money which would earn him more in the savings bank, and which does not insure him at the period of his life when the risk is greatest and when his family most needs his insurance. By the terms of the regular endowment policy, when the period for the payment of the endowment arrives he gets back merely what he pays into the company and LOSES his insurance.

Now, as an older man by ten or twenty or twenty-five years, according to the length of his policy, he is therefore nearer death, and he is therefore in greater need of life insurance for his dependent ones. But if he should take out life insurance again in this company, at the moment when his insurance ends by the accruing of his endowment, he would be obliged to pay a very much larger premium on account of his advanced years.

This is exactly what he ought not to be obliged to do; at least, without knowing how little he really gets, how little the endowment means to him, and what it costs him for the real object of his dealing with the insurance company, namely: The object of insuring his family against his death.

Mr. Elwell has for several years presented a bill to the Legislature which would cure this evil by providing that the two features should be so separated that a part of the policy should run on to the end of the life of the insured, while the endowment part may accrue at a stated period. This bill is endorsed by the ablest insurance actuaries in the State as a sound proposal, not unfair to the insurance companies and most beneficial to the public. It is also endorsed by men like Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, who has made a special study of the insurance question.

The AMERICAN hopes that the insurance companies will not have influence enough this year to defeat this good bill.

Poetry and Philosophy of the Blue Sky

By Garrett P. Serviss

"KINDLY explain the reason of the sky's blueness on a clear day. Shelley in his 'Cloud' says:

" 'For after the rain, when, with never a stain,
The pavilion of heaven is bare,
And the winds and sunbeams, with their convex gleams,
Build up the blue dome of air.'—etc.

"Is the theory contained in these lines accepted now?—A. D."

As to Shelley's lines, I do not see that they contain anything that could be called a theory. They are simply words that convey beautiful images to the mind, so arranged that their whole effect is a brilliant, but indefinite, mental picture. The idea of "convex gleams," and that of the winds and sunbeams laboring shoulder to shoulder, as associated builders, to erect a blue dome overhead, are purely poetic conceptions, and probably Shelley never had the slightest authority for them except his imagination.

The real explanation of the blue color of the sky is far more beautiful than this iridescent play of poetic fancy. It takes us into the very heart of the sunbeam, and shows us its tiny waves, with their pure prismatic hues, shattered and scattered by floating particles so minute that no microscope could bring them within the limits of visibility — infinitesimal reefs in the atmospheric ocean that rings the earth, upon which the billows of sunlight break into azure spray.

To some extent, probably, the cerulean color of the sky is due to oxygen, one of the two principal constituents of the air, for when oxygen is condensed to the point of liquefaction it shows itself as an exquisitely blue liquid. But the principal cause of the sky-color is the scattering of the constituent rays of sunlight by minute floating, or suspended, particles.

Most of the atmospheric particles that remain afloat at a high altitude are so minute that the larger, longer, light-waves, which are the ones conveying the impression of red and yellow to our eyes, roll over them, so to speak, without much interruption, but with the smaller blue waves the case is different. They are seriously obstructed by the floating particles, and scattered in all directions, thus imparting a prevailing azure color to the great body of the atmosphere as we look up through it from the earth.

Miniature "Italian skies" have been created in glass vessels, through which a beam of light was caused to traverse air charged with ultra-miscroscopic particles, and showed how, as the particles became larger, the blue color faded and a whitish tinge overcame it, indicating that the larger waves were now involved in the scattering effect of the particles, their combination producing white.

When the particles form thick clouds they cut off the blue rays entirely, and then the transmitted light assumes a reddish or orange tint. This occurs at sunset, when the light has to traverse a great thickness of dense atmosphere near the earth's surface.

On the other hand, as we mount higher above the surface of the earth we find that the blue of the sky grows darker and darker, passing from an indigo tint to almost pure black at great elevations. Everybody who has been on a very lofty mountain top in clear weather has observed the remarkable darkness of the heavens.

It is due to the relative absence of dust and water particles above the ordinary cloud level.

Staying in College

By William H. Faunce

President of Brown University

PART TWO

IT would be an immense gain to American colleges if about one-quarter of the students now in them could be immediately excluded, and their places filled with the eager outsiders who are longing for a chance to study—but who is wise enough to select the men that are not worth while? We shall have to depend on the clumsy examination system for a long time to come.

But two things we can do. We can remind every one who wants to enter college that "preparedness" is vastly more than cramming down the languages and mathematics.

To be prepared means to have acquired a real ambition. It means the power to say "no" to foolish things and "yes" to the big things of life.

It means to possess a backbone that is more than a "chocolate eclair." It means getting done with "skiddishness" and resolving to play the man. He who is still a child—in fickle purpose and flabby will—should stay out of the college which will treat him as a man.

The other thing we can do is to insist that the college itself shall take better care of the freshmen. All the colleges are now waking up to the waste and wreckage of the freshman year. In different ways we are all attacking the same problem.

At Harvard the remedy is offered through freshman dormitories, practically segregating the freshman class. At Princeton the remedy is found in a system of preceptors, each one having a squad of five or six students under his personal guidance.

At Amherst it is proposed to open to the freshman courses in economics, which will lead them out of "prep. school studies" into the discussion of the fundamental problems of modern society.

At Brown we shall require all new students this year to take a course of one hour a week in what we call the "Orientation of Freshmen"—instruction in the origin and purpose of the American college, the meaning and value of the different departments and studies, student standards or honor, the use and abuse of fraternities, student activities, etc.

Thus we are all trying in different ways to save students from blind groping, stumbling and dropping out. But we can not save them unless they want to be saved.

Perhaps 26,000 young people entered our colleges in September, to write after their names the magic figures "19." Some of them will be out of college again in January. "Can I get in?" That is not the real question. The question to be asked now is: "Can I stay? Can I survive the sifting process and prove that I was worth educating?"

The City

By Jane McLean

IT is the Mecca of the great untried.
The burial ground of those whose souls have died;
The melting pot of hopes and dreams and fears,
A seething maelstrom wet with human tears.
A tawdry place of tinsel, froth and glare,
Of shuddering chaos and of black despair.
Of lights and glamour, song and perfumed face.
Soulless, and with a woman's painted face.
And yet some who have tried its devious ways,
Whose hearts have trembled in its fire for days,
Have dreamed its dreams and deemed its heart a goal,
And glimpsed the romance in its buried soul.

Women Fast Becoming as Responsible as Men in All Walks of Life

No Longer Satisfied to Be Petted, Privileged Dependents of Husbands and Brothers — Even Now Regarded as Most Reliable Witnesses in Courts of Law

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

A WOMAN in business is very much distressed by having the statement made to her that the word of our sex was not held in high esteem in the legal world, and that from almost every standpoint woman was regarded by man as a rather irresponsible being.

Until the last quarter of a century woman was what man made her, with his laws and restrictions and traditions. Yet even with all those handicaps she has left a remarkable record upon the books of history.

In every walk of life, in every art and sphere, woman has made her shining mark. During the last twenty-five years her progress has been less impeded by the debris of old traditions, and she has sped forward upon the broadening road of progress with astonishing rapidity.

Comments and criticisms such as my correspondent repeats are scarcely worth remembering or refuting. Man compelled woman to prevaricate about herself for so many centuries that if she has still the tendency to withhold the truth or to distort it at times we need not wonder.

Man hid her away from all knowledge of the great issues of life so long and kept her in ignorance for fear she would know herself and him too well that we should not be surprised if she is still unable to grasp real conditions of life as readily as he is.

Realization of Personal Responsibility Has Only Begun to Dawn on Woman

A realization of personal responsibility has only begun to dawn upon woman. She still thinks of herself, to a great extent, as the privileged being—where self-dependence is concerned—that man educated her to believe was God's intent when she was formed.

Without question, woman does not keep appointments of a business nature as promptly or regard obligations as seriously as the majority of men do. Few business women are as thorough as men in their work, and their methods are less direct, less positive. Women are usually more nervous than men, and consequently less agreeable to deal with.

It is only the exceptional woman who possesses the power of concentration, which is one of the first qualities a man develops in business. Women scatter their forces in a thousand avenues where men conserve them. Women have not yet learned to know that value of time in business matters as men perceive its value.

Tactful and agreeable in social life, in business woman rarely shows these qualities to the same degree the most blundering man exhibits them in his dealings with his fellows.

She is often brusque with her own sex and indifferent with the other, mistaking both attitudes for poise in the business world. Woman still expects privileges and benefits to be granted her because she is a woman.

But all these peculiarities will be outgrown with the passage of time and the increasing opportunities allowed her for the cultivation of her full powers. Here are a few suggestions for every woman who wishes to prove herself as successful as her male competitors.

Let her put down in her notebook these qualities as worthy of cultivation:

A sense of responsibility to fill her position with dignity and exactness.

A realization of the value of time, her own and that of others.

Promptness in keeping engagements.

A purely business point of view regarding debts, with no idea of sex privileges or benefits.

The value of affability and the necessity for tact in business affairs.

The need of controlling the nerves and nervous actions.

A fine sense of honor, of truthfulness, and a desire for thoroughness.

Meantime here is what is reported by Mlle. Borst, a French philosopher, who has been experimenting with men and women in the matter of credibility of evidence. The experimenter used twenty-four persons, twelve of each sex, in her investigation.

After ending the tests, which covered several weeks, as the subjects were examined repeatedly, Mlle. Borst tabulated the results.

She noted false answers, correct answers, answers certain and uncertain, correct or wrong answers given under oath. She thus discovered the extent of evidence given, its faithfulness, the assurance of the witness, the influence of the oath upon him or her.

These are her chief conclusions:

Woman Sees More Details Than Man and Remembers Them Better

Entirely faithful evidence is the exception, every witness supplying from his or her imagination the omissions of memory.

About 10 per cent of the statements in a voluntary deposition are wrong.

Depositions brought about by suggestions are longer than voluntary ones; fuller, that is, of detail—but less reliable.

Evidence improves by practice.

Women are more truthful witnesses than men.

About one-twelfth of the statements in a deposition under oath are incorrect.

Mlle. Borst's investigation simply bears out, in a scientific manner, the idea that woman sees more details than man, and remembers them better.

It is an interesting discovery.

This would indicate that "the woman in business" has been misinformed regarding the legal status of woman's word the world over.
